Council Sets Up $50,000 to Finance Relief

TRANSFER OF FUNDS HINGES ON COURT O. K.

Puts Speedy Approval on Bill That Would Take Money From Sinking Fund.

SOLICITOR FILES PETITION

Surprise Measure Presented by Auditor Passes by Vote of 8 to 0 as Emergency.

Acting speedily on a piece of surprise legislation last night, city council set up a $50,000 poor relief fund, contingent upon the approval of the plan by common pleas court.

It approved an emergency measure authorizing City Solicitor Marion D. Ward to file a petition in common pleas court asking permission to transfer $50,000 from the sinking fund to the relief fund.

The vote on the legislation was 8 to 0. Fifth Ward Councilman Fred Miller was the only absentee.

Needs Only Court Okay.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley explained that with court approval of the transfer, the funds would be immediately transferred to the relief fund without the need of any further action of council.

The legislation, which came as a surprise to council after it had dismissed the relief problem for two weeks, was presented by Kelley and introduced by Third Ward Councilman George C. Kyle, who called for suspension of the rules in order that a vote on the passage of the bill could be taken at once. After the second reading of the measure, Councilman-at-large James E. Crum called for an explanation.

Accumulation of Funds.

Kelley said that there had been a balance of $58,000 in the special assessment bond retirement fund at the first of the year, which has been the accumulation of city funds over and above bonds issued in the past 30 years.

With outstanding indebtedness of approximately $24,000 and approximately $54,000 still outstanding in delinquencies to the fund, Kelley said he was of the opinion that $50,000 could be transferred for financing the relief load for the balance of the year.

He pointed out that the fund was not built up from over-assessments paid by property owners in past years, but that the entire amount in the fund represented only the city's share.

Council members said after the meeting that the legislation came as a surprise, with only Second Ward Councilman C. N. Shultz, a member of the finance committee, admitting he knew of the plan before the meeting. He said he had understood that city officials had been working on the plan, but did not know that it was to be presented at last night's special meeting.

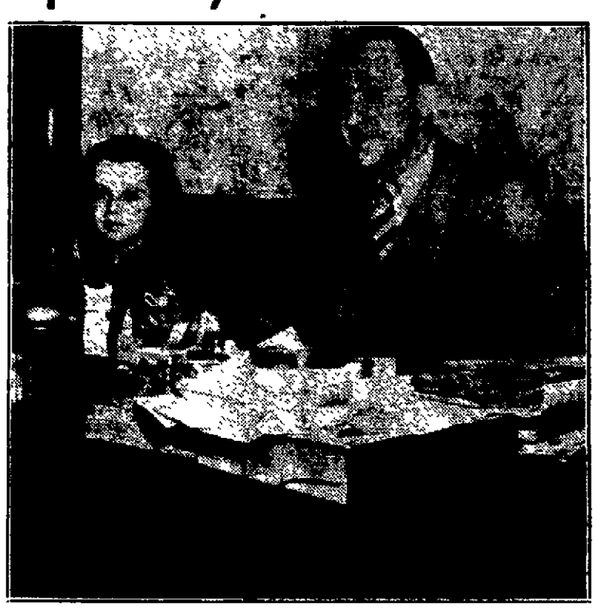
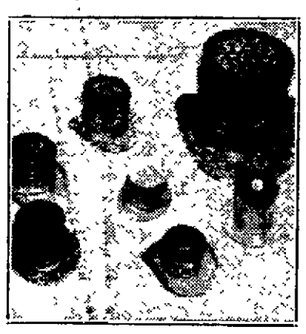
Unique Hobbies Developed By Mansfielders





WHEELED HOBBY—L. L. Webber, Rowland avenue, has spent his leisure time in the past 20 years in reproducing, in miniature, every known method of transportation. Here is shown his covered wagon, perfect in detail, even to the old style brake on the back wheels. In the foreground may be seen a wheelbarrow, an Indian sled and an ox cart.

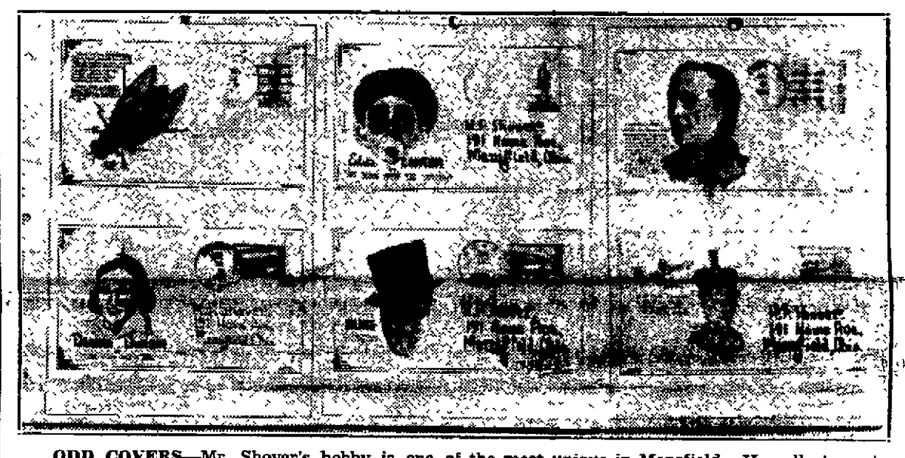
HAT HOBBY—Gilbert Ireland, Glessner avenue, collects glass hats, and has several of deep jewel colors. He started his hobby two years ago when a friend presented him with a crystal hat from an antique collection. More recently he has been collecting glass slippers.



ODD COVERS—Mr. Shover's hobby is one of the most unique in Mansfield. He collects postoffice cancellations of towns and cities whose names fit the cartoons on his self-addressed envelopes. All of his envelopes are stamped with commemorative stamps. The envelope with the fly on it was cancelled at Fly, O. The others, which bear the cancellation of identical towns are Eddie Cantor, John Paul Jones, Deanna Durbin, Duke Ellington and King George.

ASKS ACTION ON SLUM CLEARING

Hunter, Enthusiastic Over Project After Toledo Tour, Seeks Funds for Survey.

Following an inspection tour with the county commissioners yesterday of Toledo's $6,000,000 slum clearance project, Mayor Claude M. Hunter said he was "highly in favor" of a similar program for Mansfield and that he would urge immediate action to get it under way.

As the first step in this direction, he said he would call on the commissioners to appropriate the necessary funds to conduct a survey here so the city might share in the $65,000,000 allocated to Ohio for this purpose.

In the meantime final arrangements were being made by the Chamber of Commerce for a housing clinic to be held tonight in connection with the proposed slum clearance project.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(INS)—The hours dragged by today for Murray Levine with still no response to the message broadcast last night to the kidnapers of his young son, Peter, that they may safely collect their $30,000 ransom.

"For God's sake act, and act promptly," pleaded Rev. Francis J. H. Coffin, pastor of Christ Episcopal church in Larchmont in a plea given as though directly to the kidnapers.

Coffin revealed that it was he who had attempted earlier in the negotiations to deliver the ransom. He described how he had driven alone to the designated spot with the ransom money and had slowly driven back and forth

Mansfield Hobbies Range From Matches to Cartoons

Collector-Artist Draws Own Unique Covers and Gets Cancellations to Match His Drawings.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Do you have a hobby? If you don't you're unusual, because practically everyone has. Hobbies were once something that only millionaires and celebrities had—mostly for the purposes of having something to talk about in interviews with "the press."

But today practically everyone has a "weakness," whether it's a rose garden or a collection of something or other. Most hobbies are collections, if a survey of Mansfield hobbyists is an indication. Stamps and antiques are the commonest forms of "hobbyists," and there are dozens of such collectors in Mansfield.

Cartoon Hobby.

Several very unusual hobby collections have been discovered in Mansfield. H. F. Shover, 191 Home avenue, a cartoonist formerly with the Walt Disney studios in Hollywood, has what is probably the most unique; a collection of postoffice cancellations on envelopes decorated with appropriate cartoons.

He has hundreds of them, although he started with the idea only about two years ago. He draws the cartoon and colors it in water paints, sends it to postmast-

PICK-UP FAILS

Federal Reserve Says March Upturn Forecast Fizzled.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—An expected upturn in business in this section in the early part of March failed to materialize except in a few lines, the Monthly Business Review of the Federal Reserve bank here said today.

Failure of the upturn showed mostly in iron and steel, automobile parts and accessories, tires and glass, all of which failed to make expected season gains. Reports from some other industries and most smaller centers indicated the decline from last year was moderate when compared to these.

Retail trade held up better in the smaller cities, and agricultural conditions throughout the district were good. Manufacturing employment led the loss in total employment, the report said.

Asphalt Employe, Hurled 12 Feet In Gas Blast, Paralyzed

Harley E. Smith, 37, of 29 Fair street, was in the General hospital today in critical condition with a fractured spine sustained when he was blown from the top of a tank car in a gas explosion at the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company at 4 a. m. today.

Smith was hurled 12 feet to the ground in an explosion that roused residents in the vicinity of the plant, which is located at the rear of 31 Orange street. Scores of calls were received by the police and fire departments.

Police investigated and found Smith, who had been working alone heating a car of asphalt with steam from a boiler located in the building, on the ground beside the steel tank car.

While the cause of the explosion has not been determined, police said Smith apparently had been on top of the car making an inspection of the contents, and that in his attempt to remove the tank cover, gas which had accumulated on the inside, had been ignited.

The theory that the blast might have been caused by a cigaret was dismissed when Carl H. Stander, president of the firm, who said Smith, employed by the company for the past 10 years, did not smoke.

At the hospital where Smith was taken in an ambulance, physicians said he suffered burns about the head and a fracture of the spine which had paralyzed his body from the waist down.

MEXICO FORMS OIL COMPANY

Prepares to Operate Lands Seized From U. S., Other Foreign Interests.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY—The government, thus far unmindful of official foreign protests against the seizure of privately-owned properties, went into the oil business today.

Announcement of the formation of the National Oil Exporting company, to administer foreign sales of Mexico's oil supply, was made coincidentally with reports that two American oil promoters had conferred with President Lazaro Cardenas.

Organization of the sales company indicated that the government was ready to talk business. In addition, a special session of congress was called for April 11 to consider emergency legislation made necessary by expropriation of $400,000,000 worth of foreign-owned oil properties and suspension of the United States silver purchasing agreement.

The Americans reportedly involved were Francis W. Rickett, who negotiated a contract for an oil concession in Ethiopia shortly before the Italian conquest, and Bernard E. Smith, a New York stock broker. Both were scheduled to fly to Chicago today.

Rickett, who has a reputation of being somewhat of a mystery man as a promoter, was noncommital when interviewed, saying "everywhere I go it is imagined that I am involved in all kinds of deals." Smith refused to talk.

SHERIFF STILL WITHOUT CLUES IN WPA KILLING

Calls In Friends and Son In Effort to Learn If Victim Had Been In Quarrel.

CHECK RECENT ACTIVITIES

Authorities Cling to Theory Father of 10 Was Beaten to Death for Revenge.

With the murder of Sherman Reed, 58-year-old WPA worker, more than 40 hours old, Richland county authorities were still without a lead today in their attempt to solve the brutal slaying of the father of 10 children whose body was found Wednesday evening in his cabin east of the city.

Sheriff E. P. Long and Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott talked with five friends and relatives of the slain man today concerning his recent activities and in an effort to learn if he had quarrelled with anyone who might have held a grudge.

Tell of Buying Cider.

Among the persons called to the sheriff's home this morning were Charles Burger and Rudolph Burggraf, neighbors, who had been with Reed the night before his death on a visit to an orchard west of the city where they purchased cider.

Burger, who found the body Wednesday night when he went to Reed's home, said they had left Reed about 7:40 p. m. Tuesday after they returned with the cider. Two jugs of cider were found in Reed's kitchen.

Burger found Reed's body, he said, when he went to the cabin to get Reed to help him catch crawfish for his pet raccoon. He summoned Burggraf before telephoning for the sheriff.

Says He Knew of No Enemy.

Reed's youngest son, Virgil, 26, who works on a farm near Shelby, was questioned today about acquaintances of the youth's father. The son had lived with the father at intervals during recent months, it was learned, but contended that he knew of no enemy his father might have had.

The sheriff said he would call in companions of the slain man for questioning this afternoon. Neighbors of Reed told officers they had seen no one near the cabin since Tuesday night, although Russell Chew, 23, who lives near the Reed home, reported he saw smoke coming from the chimney of the

PASSES SENATE

RFC Business Aid Bill Sent to House For Action.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate passed today a bill to give the Reconstruction Finance corporation wide new authority to lend to business enterprises. It also would revive RFC loans to states and subdivisions for public works construction.

The administration measure now goes to the house.

The bill, by Senator Glass (D-Va.), would extend the scope of RFC lending and permit that agency to make available approximately $1,500,000 for long time loans.

Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC testified the measure would make funds available for five, ten or 15 year loans to business which commercial banks might not undertake.

LOYALISTS OPEN NEW OFFENSIVE, TRAP FASCISTS

Launch Fresh Drive After Hidden Troops Slaughter Insurgents at Lerida.

(By United Press)

HENDAYE, FRENCH - SPANISH FRONTIER — The Spanish Loyalists have started an offensive on the Guadalajara front, key to Madrid, and have inflicted a severe reverse on Nationalists besieging Lerida on the Catalonian front, it was asserted officially today.

Striking swiftly on the long inactive front northeast of Guadalajara—from which the Nationalists threatened a new drive on Madrid—the Loyalists took three villages and stormed two ranges of hills which gave them domination over the rebel-held town of Abanades, it was announced at Madrid.

Abanades is a corner stone of the Nationalist line on the Guadalajara front. If the Loyalists took it they could turn the Nationalist line and could force the insurgents to strengthen their forces at once.

Suffer Severe Setback.

From Barcelona came the claim of a severe setback for the Nationalists who now almost surround Lerida, capital of Lerida province and first city of importance in the Nationalist drive into Catalonia.

Loyalists hid themselves, thousands strong, in houses and on rooftops of Lerida, it was asserted, and remained quiet while Nationalist tanks and airplanes reconnoitered. Apparently the Nationalist tank and plane scouts reported that the Loyalists had fled, it was asserted, and their infantry began marching in. Then the Loyalists began a terrific fire, it was asserted—tank guns against tanks, anti-aircraft guns against the airplanes, and machine guns and hand grenades against the infantry.

The Nationalists retreated, leaving tanks and many casualties in the streets of the city's suburbs, it was asserted, but, it was admitted, continued their efforts to encircle the city.

Nationalists, in their communiques, ignored this phase of the battle and concentrated on their powerful if deliberate push eastward into Catalonia and toward the Mediterranean seacoast.

Resume Flight to France.

WIRES STREAM INTO OFFICES OF LAWMAKERS

New Foes of Reorganization Bill Join Fight to Kill 'Dictator' Measure.

PRESS SPEEDS CAMPAIGN

Administration Leaders Seek Final Vote Tomorrow; Priest Renews Opposition.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A new deluge of telegrams urged house members today to kill the government reorganization bill, but administration leaders fought steadfastly for its passage before the week ends.

Employes of telegraph companies worked all night to handle the uncounted thousands of messages, many of which were received after a hastily-arranged radio denunciation of the bill by Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest. Both sides agreed it was too early to tell the effect of the protests.

Hold Passage Assured.

On the basis of preliminary returns from a poll of members, some Democratic chieftains openly declared the bill would pass. Republican Leader Snell of New York conceded that the opposition did not command enough votes—"yet"—to defeat it.

Although leaders failed yesterday to place a limit on debate, it was common talk in house cloakrooms that they wanted a final vote by tomorrow to stave off some of the communications, especially those that might follow a Sunday speech by Father Coughlin.

If that was their intention, the priest crossed them up by going on the air last night.

"If there must be reorganization of government," he said, "let it begin where it should begin—at the head."

Father Coughlin criticized the bill's provision for placing the office of education under a proposed new department of welfare.

"By its very words," he said, "it admits that it is an instrument aimed to centralize government in a totalitarian state, with education of your offspring as one of its most outstanding features."

Monsignor Discloses Stand.

Shortly after his speech, Monsignor Michael J. Ready, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare conference, issued a statement in Washington. The administrative board of the conference, he said, "has always on principle opposed the conferring of administrative control on federal educational agencies." Then he added:

"If, therefore, the present reorganization .... bill does not extend the powers and functions of these agencies beyond fact-finding and dissemination of information, as at present exercised, there is no reason to suppose that the catholic

END PLANE HUNT

Navy Pilots Return, 6 Fellow Fliers Given Up for Dead.

HONOLULU—(INS)—Search for a missing navy bombing patrol plane with six men aboard has been discontinued, Admiral Claude Bloch, commander in chief of the United States fleet said today.

"It is regretfully concluded that there is no hope of finding the plane or survivors, and the search has been discontinued," Admiral Bloch stated.

He pointed out that approximately 100,000 square miles had been combed by more than 200 planes and surface craft during a period of more than 24 hours with not a trace of the missing plane.

6,500 Tagless—There Ought To Be Parking Places Now!

Mansfield's parking and traffic problem ought to be considerably simpler today, because there were approximately 6,500 automobiles in the city that couldn't be driven because they did not have 1938 licenses.

When the office of the deputy registrar, Frank Beverstock, closed at 8 p. m. yesterday, only 8,740 plates for passenger cars had been sold. There were 15,286 licenses issued by Beverstock last year.

One arrest was made today for driving with 1937 plates after the midnight deadline. Officer Howard Schuck arrested Harold S. Ackley, Mansfield, this morning on North Walnut street. His car was taken to police garage and he was fined the court costs of $8.30 in municipal court.

On the final day for purchasing licenses 844 were sold, 40 more than for the same day last year, Beverstock reported. Business was fairly brisk today as tardy and car-less motorists bought tags.

Police and state highway patrolmen had instructions today to pick up any motorist found driving with old tags. Frank West, state registrar of motor vehicles, announced today that there are still about 300,000 auto owners without 1938 tags.

At Cincinnati, City Manager C. O. Sherrill allowed 1937 tags to be used until 7 a. m. Monday. Akron and Summit county enforcement officers said arrests would not be made until Monday.

NEEDY WARNED

Township Says Those Buying New Auto Tags To Be Dropped.

Trustees of Troy township today warned their relief clients that those who purchase 1938 automobile license plates will immediately be removed from the relief rolls.

The move, designated to reduce relief costs in the township which must be paid by trustees, follows a similar order issued last month by county relief officials.

PROPOSES 25 PER CENT CUT IN PHONE RATES

Commission's Report Points Out A. T. & T. Net Earnings Wouldn't Suffer.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A federal communications commission report today proposed a 25 per cent cut in all telephone rates and congressional imposition of broad regulatory powers over the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

The report was submitted by FCC Commissioner Paul Walker after a three-year, $1,500,000 inquiry into the structure of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. Copies also were sent to the house and senate interstate commerce committees.

Its provisions must be approved by the full communications commission, however, before specific recommendations are made to congress.

The report blamed "high costs, resulting from certain major policies and practices of the (Bell) system. . . ." For current rates that it considers unduly high. It suggested a long-range national policy on wire communications "in order to achieve efficient telephone service at reasonable cost."

Three-Year Probe.

Although not a final report of the commission, Walker said, however, that it "suggests the commission's position" with regard to the matters treated.

Culminating nearly three years of investigation that cost the government $1,500,000, the report found that the $4,000,000,000 corporation, which controls 90 per cent of the telephone industry, could operate with rates at 75 per cent of the present level "without interrupting the existing net earnings."

At the same time, the commission requested legislation to give it power to approve or disapprove telephone rates, limit the activity of the corporation to the field of communication only, and further curb monopolistic tendencies.

In four volumes totalling 1,065 pages containing an estimated 250,000 words the report deals with every phase of the industry, tracing its history from the time of the invention of the telephone by Alexander Graham Bell in 1876, its fight for exclusive rights in the telephone field near the turn of the century, and its policies and practices in the last 20 years.

In his summary, Walker said the report "is directed largely to a demonstration of the unnecessarily high cost of rendering telephone service by Bell system companies."

Gifford Brands Program as 'Absurd.'

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—President Walter S. Gifford of American Telephone & Telegraph today sharply challenged the federal communications A. T. & T. report and charged its proposal that rates might be reduced 25 per cent without reducing net earnings was "absurd."

"This country has the best, the most extensive, the most widely used and the cheapest telephone service in the world," said Gifford. "In spite of this, it would appear that fault has been found with almost everything this company has done throughout its existence. This just does not make sense."

Gifford declared the report, prepared by FCC Commissioner Paul Walker, "presents much that is simply not true and has been prepared with the same unfairness that characterized the investigation proceedings."

Gifford noted that A. T. & T. had been denied the right to cross-examine witnesses at inquiry hearings and the right to include in the record written material "necessary to point out serious and important errors affecting most of the investigators' reports."

Sullivan Picks On Indians

Former Tribesman Believes Part of Troubles Come From Short Fence.

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

IT seems to be the custom of ball players to clear the mysteries surrounding the failures of their former teammates after they are sent elsewhere.

Sullivan

Billy Sullivan, who figured in the trade that brought Rollie Hemsley to Cleveland, is no exception.

In this week's issue of the Sporting News, national baseball weekly, the former Indian attempts to explain why the Cleveland club seldom lives up to expectations.

While he may be accused of "second guessing," Sullivan's reasoning appears logical.

Chiefly, he says, the Tribe's troubles come from the high right field wall at League park, or, rather, the absence of that wall in other parks in the American league; absence of an inspirational player of the Dick Bartell or Leo Durocher type on the infield, too many exhibition games, exploiting Bob Feller, too many extra-good regular starting pitchers and morning practice.

Commenting on the Cleveland defects, the new St. Louis catcher explains the "right field" habit. Many of the Indians, he claims, have become strictly "pull-hitters," trying to loft all of their drives over the short fence.

Admitting that this might be a good idea at home, it hasn't worked out very well in foreign parks. They have become so accustomed to pulling their hits at League park that they can't drop the habit when on the road, where the home run drivers of League park are merely pop flys.

Sullivan, in elaborating on the absence of inspirational players, said that he believed the Indians would be twice as hard to beat "if they'd have a little more pepper and fight."

"I guess an exhibition game now and then is alright," Billy put in, "but the Cleveland club continually booked them, cashing in, of course, on the popularity of Bob Feller."

"For while the club made money on them, the psychological effect on the players themselves did not help the team win championship games."

TO some clubs, a good pitching staff is a blessing, but it was a curse to the Indians, in the opinion of Sullivan.

". . . we had so many starters that the boys couldn't take their regular turn, with the result that they got stale from sitting around, waiting for an opportunity to pitch."

Sullivan stated that the team had more than its share of morning practice while at home, especially when the club was in the throes of a losing streak. These sessions merely made the boys more conscious of their losing ways, he said.

Sullivan believes Oscar Vitt is on the right track with the Indians already, and believes the club might win under him.

And as for Feller, the Brownie sees a bright future for the pitching phenom—"providing he learns to conserve his energy and bear down in the spots when the occasion demands."

He blames Feller's failure to win last year due to over-work in spring training games.

Lunches Head List of Teams In Action at Y Tonight

Gold Medal Tourney Choices Go Into Action at 10 P. M.; Crowd Sees Openers.

By CHARLES MARTIN

JIMMY'S Lunch cagers holds the spotlight tonight in the Class A division of the Gold Medal tournament at the Y. M. C. A.

The Lunches, favorites to annex the championship, make their debut against the Galion Quality Coals at 10 o'clock in a second-round game that will close the tourney until Wednesday.

Holds Attention.

The outcome of this battle will be watched with interest as the winner will establish itself as an outstanding favorite to win the crown. Another club that loomed as a serious title contender, the Ashland Merchants, withdrew.

In the other game tonight, the Lakewood Merchants face Mack's Pure Oils in another second round affair at 9:15. Two first round tilts tonight in the A division tosses the Willis Billiards of Mansfield against the Mt. Vernon Shellmar Products at 7:45, and the Galion Barbers against Earl's Dairy of Marion at 8:30.

Interest will also be focused on the Billiards tonight. The club, composed of members of this year's Westinghouse Electric City A league entry, may prove a title threat. On the squad are Ed Henrich, George Bosko, Howard Poole, Jack Miner, Harold Hayfer, Bob Shade, and Bob Fisher.

One Class B melee will open the program at 7 p. m. The tilt pits the Ashland Y. M. C. A. club against the Lexington merchants.

Survive First Round.

Two Mansfield clubs survived the Class A opening round last night. Reece Opticals advanced by edging the Triangle Grills of Marion, 23 to 21, on Harold Richard's last-second bucket, and Mack's Pure Oils remained in the running by defeating the Blue Sunocos of Ashland, 33 to 24.

Ralph's Snappy Service of Marion and the Galion Quality Coals moved into the second round by eliminating the Mansfield Hi-Speeds and Benny's Hi Notes, respectively.

The Marion outfit smothered the Hi-Speeds, 49 to 30, and the Coals handed the Hi Notes a 40 to 24 drubbing.

The Mansfield Queen Bees won the only B division tilt on tap by defeating the Willard Merchants, 27 to 21.

Ralph's Snappy Service outfit established itself as a serious title contender with its performance against the Hi-Speeds. The Marion club, led by Vic Gillis, broke loose on a scoring spree in the opening half and piled up a lead the Hi-Speeds were unable to overcome. Marion led, 26 to 7, at halftime, but the losers put themselves back into the ball game with a sudden bombardment on the backboard. The Hi-Speeds climbed within three points of the lead, but Gillis took care of the situation with several long shots.

Trim Hi Notes.

The Quality Coals had little trouble with the Hi Notes. The taller Galion quintet grabbed a 14 to 8 lead at the half.

Richard's last-second basket enabled the Opticals to break at 21-all deadlock and top the Triangle Grills. It was a nip-and-tuck affair the whole way, with the Grills holding a 13 to 10 advantage at half.

Mack's Pure Oils and the Blue Sunocos put on a real battle. The clubs fought through a close first half that saw the Oils emerge with a 11 to 10 advantage. The Sunocos put themselves back in the game, but the Oilmen's last minute spurt iced the game. Fritz Vogel led the winners with 15 points.

The Queen Bees had their hands full with the Willard Merchants in the B tilt. The Mansfield club led, 9 to 7, at the half. Bill Condon set the pace for the winners with nine points.

'Psychology Did It'

New Indoor Net Queen Explains Success.

DAYTON—(AP)—The national indoor women's tennis champion—shy, demure, red-haired Virginia Hollinger — ranks psychology ahead of her net triumphs to this 21-year-old Wittenberg co-ed.

She Can Smile, too.

Tennis is just a "serious hobby" lege senior, who learned the game eight years ago with a $1.50 racquet her father purchased so she could "knock a ball around the yard with her sister."

But from her psychology studies Miss Hollinger has developed some fancy defensive feints and tricks, which she credits with carrying her to a topflight position among women tennis players.

Virtually unheralded when she went to New York early this year, the 5-foot, 100-pound Dayton girl upset all of her opponents in the indoor championship matches with a flawless defense and a sharp volleying attack.

The young girl concentrated on her defensive play in the indoor matches, but her coach-father, William P. Hollinger, declares she was developing an offensive game in preparation for the 1938 national outdoor women's matches.

"She didn't use it much in the recent New York tournament," Hollinger explains, "because she didn't have full confidence in it. I believe that she can be successful in her present type of play and I think she has an excellent chance at Forest Hills."

The strenuous baseline play, which has marked most of Miss Hillinger's matches, does not tire her, her father adds.

Miss Hollinger attributes much of her success to her father, an accountant, who was a tennis star in his younger days. She plays mostly with masculine opponents and declares that their hard style of play has improved her game.

A year after starting to play, Miss Hollinger won her first title, a community championship. She followed it with other triumphs in the midwest and won the Mary K. Browne Lake Erie women's invitational tournament four years in succession.

Somewhat reticent about discussing her achievements on the courts, she is planning an active summer campaign in preparation for the national outdoor women's matches at Forest Hills, N. Y., in the fall.

Milnar's Work Against Pels May Win Job

Burley Southpaw Stops Minor Leaguers in Relief Role.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(UP)—Al Milnar, a product of the Cleveland sandlots, came to the Indians training camp here this spring labeled as a distinct problem. He had been tried on several previous occasions and then always shunted back to the minors.

Milnar definitely had been removed from the "problem" class today and was established as a member of the Cleveland mound corps. The burly southpaw worked six innings yesterday and gained credit for the 6 to 5 victory the Tribe scored over the New Orleans Pelicans.

Nick Bob Feller.

Bob Feller started the contest for the Indians and worked three innings. The Iowa schoolboy had rough sailing the entire way. He was nicked for five hits and an equal number of runs.

Milnar followed Feller to the hill and pitched shutout ball the rest of the distance. He gave up only four hits and did not walk a man.

Cleveland combed two New Orleans hurlers for 11 hits, two of which were home runs.

One of the Indians' circuit drives was by Ken Keltner, rookie third baseman, and the other by Bill Sodd, young outfielder. Keltner's smash came in the sixth round with two men on base. Sodd's was in the first inning.

Loses to Judge Again.

While the club was winning a decision over New Orleans, it lost another battle with Judge Kenesaw M Landis. The diamond's high commissioner declared two Cleveland farmhands, Charley Stancheau and Myron McCormick, free agents. Landis ruled the young pitcher and outfielder had been "covered up" in a deal between New Orleans and Buffalo, which the Indians promoted.

Resume Attack This Week-End

Legion Teams Take Over Alleys Again Saturday.

The seventh annual American Legion state bowling tournament will swing into the second week-end of competition at the Meder Recreation alleys Saturday night.

A squad of eight teams comprise the shift scheduled to pound the wood at 7 p. m. Saturday. The squad includes one of the five Mansfield teams entered in the classic.

Two Mansfield and Massillon teams are biled to roll in the five-man Sunday afternoon. They will precede singles and double shifts also on schedule Sunday afternoon.

The tournament opened last week-end with the Montpelier entry gaining the five-man lead with a 2777 total. Montpelier bowlers also hold the singles and doubles leads with respective totals of 604 and 1120.

The tournament wil be concluded next week-end.

Ruppert Through With DiMaggio?

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(UP)—Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, said today that he had "forgotten all about Joe DiMaggio," ace centerfielder who is holding out against Ruppert's offer of $25,000 for his services this year. Ruppert entrained for New York, as the Yanks broke camp and headed northward for a two-weeks schedule of exhibition games in 12 cities. DiMaggio turned down Ruppert's offer last month and went to San Francisco.

Prepares For Tennis Season

Mansield high school will be represented on the tennis court this year.

The high school players will stage a tournament at North Lake park late in April to prepare for the state high school tournament at Kenyon college.

Outstanding candidates for the team are Bob Keefe, Gene Rudolph, Cropper and Reed.

'Silly' to Talk Of First Division

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(UP)—Larry McPhail, general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today that it was "silly" to talk of the Dodgers being a first division club this year.

"We were 17½ games behind the fifth place Boston Bees last year and clubs do not improve that many games overnight," he said. "We have a much improved team, and will be stronger as the season progresses, but it takes a well-balanced, as well as a strong club to finish in the first division and the Dodgers are not in that class at present."

FIGHT ON AIR AT 11

The Joe Louis-Harry Thomas championship fight in Chicago tonight will be aired via WJZ-NBC at approximately 11 tonight. The same network will broadcast the Fred Apostoli-Glenn Lee fight from New York at 10.

Will He Be a Fistic Fool?

On this April Fool's night Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, goes into the ring determined to make a fistic fool of Harry Thomas, above, rugged challenger from Eagle Bend, Minn. They meet in a battle scheduled for 15 rounds in the Chicago stadium.

Selby Raps Out 681 To Pace 'B' Scoring

Rolls Games of 189, 267 and 225 to Top Totals Rolled at Meder Alleys Matches.

SELBY of the HalBark Clothiers rapped out a heavy 681 total in the Commercial B league at the Meder alleys last night to set a pace too fast for the other bowlers.

Featuring a middle 267 game, Selby started with a 189 and finished with a 225 tilt as he led the Clothiers to a pair of wins over the Heilman Grocers.

Team scoring honors were won by the Mansfield Rugs, who pounded out a 2770, to take two games from the Willis Billiards, led by Babe Meder's 601. Lum Burton shot a 603 for the Rugs.

Rolling a 2760 total, the Q Billiards added a pair of victories at the expense of the first place Untiet Insurance club, enabling the Mansfield Printers to cut one game off the Agents' lead. The Printers, led by Geiger's 603, took two games from the Agents.

In the other matches, Hursch accounted for a 612 as the Yuncker Sports scored two wins over the Fifth Street Lunch and the Burger Dairys swept its series with the Commercial Motor Freights.

ED CHATLAIN REPORTS WITH LUTHERAN SQUAD

SPRINGFIELD — Thirty-three candidates that will fight it out in the fall for varsity posts on the Wittenberg college football team reported recently to Coach Bill Stobbs for the annual spring football practice sessions. Ed Chatlain, a freshman from Mansfield, has been doing exceptionally good work at an end position and he has a good chance of making the varsity squad in September.

Champion 20 to 1 Favorite Tonight

Louis Expected to Dispose of Thomas In Short Order Before Disappointing Crowd.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—A new, confident Joe Louis, eyeing his million dollar rematch with Max Schmeling, tonight will meet the last of his tuneup opponents, Harry Thomas, in a scheduled 15-round heavyweight title fight at Chicago stadium.

The champion was a 20 to 1 favorite to retain his title in the third defense since he won it last June by knocking out James J. Braddock. Odds of 10 to 1 still were being quoted that Louis would score a quick knockout.

Gets 40 Per Cent.

A disappointing advance sale indicated less than 15,000 will see Chicago's first indoor heavyweight title fight. Promoter Mike Jacobs said the bout may net $75,000, of which Louis will receive 40 per cent and Thomas 12½ per cent.

For Thomas, the shot at the championship was a dream he never expected to realize. Except for his recent New York fights against Schmeling and Jimmy Adamick, the bulky Minnesotan never has headlined a major card.

For Louis, it's a chance to show he can dispose of Thomas in less time that it took Schmeling. This means he must stop Thomas in less than eight rounds.

Despite the prohibitive odds in his favor, Louis will take no chance with Thomas even to beat Schmeling's effort of a technical knockout in eight rounds.

Hands Possess Kick.

Thomas has a kick in both hands. He believes Louis will not be a great fighter if he is hit cleanly on the jaw and likely will risk all his hopes for one solid punch to the champion's head.

The champion's two weeks of boxing drills ended with the most vicious flurry he ever went through.

Admitting Thomas can change the entire course of the bout by one punch on the Bomber's chin, ringsiders who watched both boxers throughout their drills agreed Louis can hit Thomas almost at will and no man yet has been able to withstand such punishment.

Apostoli Favored Over Glenn Lee

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Glenn Lee of Edison, Neb., who last February gave New Yorkers one of the most savage middleweight fights ever seen, tangle again tonight in Madison Square Garden.

Apostoli, who earned the decision in that 12-rounder, is a 7-5 favorite over the 15-round route tonight.

1937 Champs Will Attempt To Repeat In A.B.C. Tonight

CHICAGO—(INS)—Only once in the history of the American Bowling congress has a team ever retained a five-man championship but the Krakow Furnitures will attempt to turn the trick tonight. The Detroit entry won the main event last year with a 3,118 total and are out to beat the leading 3,087 score of the Isaac Bakers from Erie, Pa.

Commodore Barry's, a Chicago K. of C. lineup, won in 1915 and 1916 but since that time no team has clicked two years in a row.

Six thousand fans jammed the Coliseum last night—the biggest crowd of cash customers to watch an ABC show—but the guns of the high-explosive Heils were stifled as the famed Milwaukee group settled for a 2,926 total.

Though the fans turned out to see Hank Marino and his national and international match champions do their stuff, it was an unknown youngster, Clifford Davies, who stole the fire from his fellows from Milwaukee Davies, anchor man for the Bliffert, Inc., team, poked out a 743 series, which included high single game of the turney, 289.

The huge crowd turned their attention on young Davies when he started his final game with 10 consecutive strikes. Only four 300 games have been rolled in the 38-year history of the congress and Davies was but two strikes from adding to bowling history. His eleventh shot crossed the head pin for a "Brooklyn" hit and he left a stubborn No. 10 pin standing.

Gloom Hangs Heavy Over World Champs

Everything Seems to Be Wrong With Yankees As They Head North to Open Season.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(UP)—Gloom and doubt hang heavy over the world champion New York Yankees today as they break camp and head north on a long exhibition tour

The Yanks have had one of the worst training sessions since they became a power in the baseball world Are the mighty New Yorkers at last cracking up and getting soft under too much prosperity and too many triumphs? Or is the jinx which sometimes attaches itself to two-time pennant winners just getting its claws into the Yanks early. These happenings may foreshadow things to come.

Monte Pearson has been massacred in exhibition games. His ineffectiveness leaves the No. 3 spot on the pitching staff wide open.

Nurses Leg Injury.

Frankie Crosetti has a leg injury and hasn't played an inning. His substitute at shotstop, Billy Knickerbocker, has a sore arm.

Lou Gehrig was out of action for a few days with a bruised hand, the first exhibition games he's missed in years.

Tommy Henrich has looked bad in the outfield, particularly his throwing, and one time had to be benched. George Selkirk also has been throwing badly and not getting his usual long-distance hits Rookie Pitchers Joe Begg and Steve Sundra have sore arms.

And most of all, Joe DiMaggio, the youngster who made the present Yanks champions, is missing, a stubborn holdout. Col. Jake Ruppert says, "I won't give DiMaggio one button off my vest more than the $25,000 offered." But the Yanks have looked so terrible that Manager Joe McCarthy may persuade Ruppert to have DiMaggio meet the Yanks for a conference when they arrive at New Orleans Saturday.

Streaks Crippled For Track Debut

Shelley, Logan, Heiser and Stark Not Likely to Face Fremont Because of Injuries.

WITH four potential point winners on the sidelines, Coach Harry Mehock was a bit skeptical today about the outcome of the opening dual meet of the season with Fremont Ross at Stadium field at 2 p. m. Saturday.

Two of the Mansfield high school track athletes pulled up with sprained ankles this week, another suffered a fractured rib and the fourth sustained a leg muscle injury.

Only Joe Logan of the hospital list stands a chance to see action in the inaugural meet, Mehock said. Logan's muscle injury is less serious than the others, but it is still painful enough to handicap him.

Suffers Broken Rib.

Bill Stark, who suffered a broken rib in a collision in practice, is not only out of the Fremont fracas, but several of the meets to follow.

The other casualties are Dave Shelley and Daryl Heiser. Their turned ankles have responded to treatment, but Mehock has no intention of using either as he is fearful of aggravating their injuries.

With Shelley and Heiser on the sidelines, the Red Streaks will be weakened considerably in the high hurdles. Their withdrawal leaves only Johnny Linta and a couple of inexperienced jumpers available for the event.

Logan's loss can be offset by Ike Smith and Johnny Kinkel in the sprints.

Outside of the casualties, the Mehockmen are ready for their 1938 debut.

However, Mehock is pessimistic over the result. Fremont is not as strong as last spring, Mehock understands, but Mansfield has not shown extraordinary strength, either.

Grooms Sophomores.

The Red Streaks will be represented by lettermen in every event except the low hurdles and half mile run. Mehock is grooming three sophomores, Howard Hershey, George Bibbs and Dick Nichols, for the low barriers. Grant Clark, Dick Hamilton and Walter Rupp stack up as the best half-milers.

Treat Fans to Two Fights Tonight

NEW YORK, —(AP)— Fight fans in New York who plan to be present at the Madison Square Garden half of the double header boxing tonight are to be given a chance to listen in on the other part coming from Chicago. Both scraps are to be carried by WJZ-NBC.

After the New York bout, a return match between the middleweights, Fred Apostoli and Glenn Lee, is finished, the plan is to cut in the Chicago description on the Garden public address system so that the fans can hear just how the heavyweight championship scrap between Joe Louis and Harry Thomas turns out.

Signs Magyar For Main Bout

Quality Club Pits Hungarian Against Pope Monday.

Still convinced that he is a better man than Frankie Talaber and severely criticizing the referee for "partial" tactics in their match last week, Joe Magyar will be back in Mansfield Monday night for a match with Eddie Pope, Rocky Mount, N. C., light-heavyweight.

Magyar can't speak a lot of English, which adds to his impatience, but if the whole thing were boiled down to the "slanguage" of the mat, the statement would undoubtedly be—"I got a raw deal."

Magyar is winding up a fairly successful campaign in America, preparatory to departing for his homeland of Hungary some time in May. Granted an extension by U. S. officials recently, Joe has expressed himself as unwilling to depart and may return in the near future to take out citizenship papers.

Eddie Pope, who meets Magyar in a two fall, 90-minute time limit match headlining Monday's card, is a former chiropractor.

Magyar believes he may still have time to force Talaber into another match and will be trying to impress Quality club officials Monday.

"Ladies' night" will again be featured, with feminine followers of the "grunt and groan sport" admitted free of charge when accompanied by escorts. The completed card will list three bouts.

SPEAR WINS NUMERALS

GREENCASTLE —Ind.— Robert Spear, former Mansfield, O., high school cage star, was one of 18 freshmen to receive basketball numerals at DePauw university.

SHEFFIELD, Eng. — Packy Paul, Canada, knocked out Jack Casey, England (3).

DENVER—Sandor Szabo, 222, Hungary, defeated Ben Morgan, 315, Houston, Tex., two straight falls.

'Smart Money' Not On Jones

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(INS)—To the throng of galleryites at least, it was, "Jones against the field" again today as the nation's ranking professionals and amateurs teed off here for the fifth annual masters golf tournament.

While the so-called "smart money" didn't weigh the stocky Robert Tyre Jones, jr., very heavily as a potential winner, the sideline handicappers were all on his side.

Golfdom's only grand-slammer didn't appear greatly concerned about the matter, himself. He slapped out a neat 69 in the final practice round yesterday.

Superstitious Medwick Hopes To Hit .403 This Year

By HENRY McLEMORE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(U.P.)—Call it coincidence if you like, but last year during spring training Joe (Ducky) Medwick was quartered in a hotel room with the number of 374—and it was .374 that Medwick hit during the 1937 season to lead all National league batsmen.

This year when Medwick arrived in St. Petersburg to begin spring training, the hotel manager escorted him to the establishment's best room, as befitted baseball's mightiest hitter.

Much to the management's astonishment Medwick took one look at the room, or rather one look at the number on the door of the room, and refused it. The manager insisted it was the very best in the house and that he must have it. Medwick said he wouldn't have it even if they gave it to him free.

The explanation was simple and to the point. The number of the room was 238 and Medwick, as superstitious as a voodoo doctor, was afraid that would be just the percentage he would hit this year if he lived in it. So he moved upstairs, to a mean little room, almost an attic number. It was dark and dreary but on its door it had a number that inspired Medwick. It was room 403, and that's just what Medwick hopes to hit National league pitching for this year.

N. C. O. CONFERENCE ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

ASHLAND—S. F. Jameson of Ashland was elected president, and O. H. Schaaf of Shelby, secretary, of the N. C. O. high school athletic conference this week in the first change of officers in 12 years. Jameson succeeds K. H. Marshall of Marion and Schaaf replaces W. L. Swick of Galion.

Turner, Fette Should Repeat; Quinn Recruits Other Old Men

By DILLON GRAHAM

BRADENTON, FLA. — (AP) — Boston's bargain-counter greybeards, Jim Turner and Lou Fette, appear ready to reward old Bob Quinn again this season for lifting them out of the obscurity of the minor leagues.

These twin sensations of the National league, who spent a lifetime in the minors before their chances came, were the rookie aces of last year—20—game winners each.

Bill Terry and Frankie Frisch and Charley Grimm, pilots with real money on hand to buy winning pitchers, were astonished last yeat at Quinn's success in picking up this pair and being so handsomely rewarded. But maybe they were one-season flashes; perhaps they'd lost too much sap from their pitching arms in the drudgery of the minors.

Old Men Are Wise.

It's too soon to tell, but, if appearances mean anything, Turner and Fette are going to be top-notch pitchers again this year. And Quinn has gambled on another pair of old-timers to go along with them—John Niggeling and Milburn Shoffner. And there's Frank Gabler and Danny MacFayden and Richard Merriwell Errickson. These Bees may turn out to possess the best pitching corps in the loop.

These greybeards have cunning and control as well as curves. But they're on the other side of 30, the danger mark in baseball. Tuner and Fette are approaching 32. Danny is almost 32. Niggeling and Shoffner are nearly 33.

"I'm ready for another good year," Turner said. "I've kept in shape during the winter riding a milk truck. My arm feels fine. I was surprised at winning 20 games last season but I knew I was ready for the majors. The breaks will have to come my way for me to win 20 again, but, anyway, I'll win my share of games."

In his rookie season Turner was the National league's outstanding pitcher, more effective than Hubbell or Dean or Mungo or Warneke or Grissom. He had an earned run average of 2 38 per 9-inning game. And he credits an accident with furnishing him with a climactic minor league season that caught Quinn's eye.

NIGGELING . . . nearly 33

"A batted ball struck my right hand, breaking the second finger," he explained. "A lump developed over that broken joint but the finger didn't hurt and so I didn't have it reset. And ever since then I've had a better curve ball.

"I've been able to get a better grip on the ball and I developed a real hook. I used to have to rely on the 'hard ones' and the smart boys would lay back and wait for it, but now when they're looking for the fast one I can slip 'em the hooker."

Fette 'Needs Luck,' Too.

Fette also feels he'll have to have luck to win 20 games—any pitcher does, but he is just as certain as Turner that he'll win plenty of games for Quinn and Skipper Casey Stengel.

Niggeling labored for Kansas City and Newark last season and, although his record wasn't so good,

SHOFFNER . . . past 32

Quinn thought he saw something and was willing to take a chance. Shoffner came up from Scranton late last year and won three games.

Gabler, obtainted from the Giants last year, has really been the standout of the spring season, showing more stuff than any of the others. And Quinn figures that a fellow with a sporting hero's name like Richard Merriwell can't miss. Errickson won 14 games for Scranton last year.

Quinn's Old Folks Home team finished last in 1937 and Quinn and Stengel nod their heads in unison and say it'll be the first division for the Bees come September.

Friendly House Scrapper Annexes Title at Marion

PAUL CARBETTA accomplished a two-fold purpose last night at Marion.

The young Friendly House simon-pure boxer, smarting from a defeat suffered at the hands of Howard Hodges of Marion on a Friendly House card early this year, defeated the Marion youth in the finals of the A. A. U. boxing tournament last night, and with the victory went the flyweight championship.

The Mansfielder, who recently won the N. C. O. flyweight crown at Galion, put on a whirlwind finish to topple his arch rival.

Ernie McKinley of Ashland, one of the outstanding featherweight fighters in this section, won the title by defeating Otis Scott of Marion in the finals last night.

In the other final affairs, Bob Wilson of Marion had to go an extra round to defeat Melvin McKinley of Ashland; Jack Hostetter of Marion defeated Vern Jones of Columbus in the lightweight division; Bill Scott, Marion, knocked out Bill Silbert of Columbus in the opening round of their middleweight scrap; Truner, Delaware, took a close decision over Max Catrugho of Tiffin in a heavyweight tussle; Bill Barlow of Bucyrus beat Bud Snively of Broadway in the light heavyweight class, and Phil Ganni of Crestline decisioned Myril Klineknacht of Galion for the welterweight crown.

Schott Slated For Opener

TAMPA, Fla. — (U.P.) — Gene Schott, youthful right-handed mound star of the Cincinnati Reds, today remained the top choice to receive the coveted opening day pitching assignment for Manager Bill McKechnie's club.

Schott, who a week ago proved his fitness for the coming championship campaign by working a full nine inning game, returned to the box yesterday for five innings as Cincinnati downed the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 5.

Schott was not as impressive yesterday as he was in a previous appearance against the Tigers, but nevertheless hurled good ball. In the five rounds he worked he gave up five hits and three runs. Schott struck out two men and walked one.

SYRACUSE ELIMINATES PITTSBURGH SKATERS

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — The 1937-38 hockey season for Pittsburgh's Hornet skaters was at an end today following their 5 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Syracuse Stars, in the second game of the best two-out-of-three first round playoffs for the western division title of the International league.

The victory sends the Stars, the 1936-37 champions, against Cleveland's Barons Sunday night in the first game of the divisional finals.

EARLY RUN-UP ATTRIBUTED TO PROFIT BUYERS

Stock Leaders Rise Fractions to 3 or More Points In Today's Session.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buying power returned to the stock market today and leaders were given a lift of fractions to 3 or more points.

Although dealings were comparatively lively at the get-away, volume dwindled later. Recoveries were chipped down in many cases near the second hour.

As in recent sessions the early run-up was attributed to "bargain hunters" and quick-turn traders playing for at least a temporary reversal of the lengthy downtrend.

Bonds and commodities improved. Foreign securities markets did better.

Market analysts found little in week-end trade reviews to bolster speculative or investment sentiment.

Dun & Bradstreet said "absence of expansion was in undiminished evidence" in retail centers, with distribution of spring goods struggling "against cold, rain and the check on buying capacity of curtailed employment in major industries."

Most merchants, it was added, still were awaiting broadening of consumer purchasing along seasonal lines.

SUE FOR LAND SOLD FOR TAXES

New Jersey Woman, Son Bring Action Against Treasurer, Seek to Recover Lot.

Seeking to recover a lot at Fifth and Main streets, Mansfield, which was sold last August on a tax foreclosure judgment, Mrs. Madella Wiedenmayer and her son, John, of Newark, N. J., today had filed action in common pleas court against County Treasurer John E. Kolb and the Fair Price Stations, Inc.

The plaintiffs also ask that a judgment for $2,558 be set aside and that a new hearing be granted.

Sold at sheriff's auction to collect on the judgment for delinquent taxes, the lot was purchased by the Fair Price Stations, Inc., Wooster, which operates a filling station on the property.

The land brought $6,750 at the sale, and the excess over the amount of the judgment is being held by the county clerk of courts pending hearing on a cross-petition filed against the county treasurer by the Motor Fuel Cooperative, Inc., which held a lease on the lot.

In the petition, Mrs. Wiedenmayer contends that she never was served personally after the filing of the tax foreclosure suit and that she had made repeated offers to pay the delinquent taxes due on the lot. The son was not named in the tax judgment suit.

Atty. Marshall C. Moore, assistant prosecutor representing the county treasurer in tax cases, pointed out that Mrs. Wiedenmayer had submitted a check for payment of the taxes, but refused to increase the amount when informed that the check was not sufficient to cover the delinquent taxes and penalties.

ONE DAY LEFT

Deadline for Personal Tax Payments Saturday Noon.

Personal property owners in Richland county will have only until Saturday noon to file their returns without penalty, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe warned today.

Payments of the levies for the first half of the year will be accepted by the county treasurer without penalty until April 10.

Although collections of personal taxes today amounted to only $55,628, less than was collected last year, Wolfe said the figure indicated little, since a considerable amount will be received by mail and receipts are expected to mount in the next 10 days.

Receipts to date include $37,834 in classified levies and $17,794 in general personal taxes, the treasurer's books showed.

HOBBIES RANGE FROM MATCHES TO CARTOONS

Artist Draws Own Covers, Gets Cancellations to Match Their Meaning.

ers in various towns and cities and they return it after cancelling the stamp.

How He Does It.

For instance, a black and white cartoon of Duke Ellington bears the postmark of Duke, Okla.; King George's envelope, with a marvelous likeness of the king, was cancelled at King George, Va.; The John Paul Jones envelope was returned from Jones, La.; and Deanne Durbin from Durbin, N. D. Shover, who worked with Disney on the first experiments for "Snow White," recently drew all of the seven dwarfs, on separate envelopes, and had them postmarked from Dwarf, Ky.

One series has the maps of 84 foreign countries which are represented in the United States, by cities or towns named for them. Each of them was postmarked from the town which the map indicates, such as Cuba, Ala; Bolivia, N. C.; Mexico, Ind.; England, Ark.

In addition to this unusual collection, Shover has a valuable collection of commemorative stamps.

A Fiery Hobby.

V. H. Oberlander, director of vocational education at Senior high school, could literally "set the world afire" with his collection which adorns the wall of his office. He has approximately 2,700 match folders collected by himself and friends from every part of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Bermuda Islands, France, Germany and Italy. They advertise everything from steamships to mouse traps.

L. L. Webber, 231 Rowland avenue, has a hobby which takes infinite patience and time. He makes replicas of every known form of transportation, with figureines in appropriate costumes. In his collection is a Russian troika, an Eskimo dog team and sled, a burro train, a covered wagon with the minutest details correctly reproduced; an Indian sled, ox cart and dozens of strange vehicles. He is a carpenter by trade and started his collection 20 years ago in the well-equipped shop in his home.

Glass Slipper Hobby.

Mrs. C. F. Phipps, 143 Hedges avenue, became interested in glass slippers and shoes years ago, and her friends have contributed to her "weakness." She has more than 200 in all sizes, in crystal, china, porcelain, velvet and jade. The oldest article is a slipper of blue and clear crystal beads which was found on Ashland hill 50 years ago after a gypsy caravan had left.

A collection of glass hats and shoes is the hobby of Gilbert Ireland, 24 Glessner avenue. His hats are exceptionally lovely in colors, —amethyst, topaz, cobalt blue, ruby, green and clear crystal. They represent gifts and purchases.

Miss Margaret West, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., has a yen for glass and china chickens which, incidentally, can be an expensive hobby. Several of her "clucks" are of imported china and rare porcelain.

Bottle Collectors.

Among Mansfielders who go in for bottle collections are Miss Esther Dunham, Andover road, who has a fascinating array of perfume bottles; and Miss Grace Holcombe, 12 Heineman boulevard, who collects odd and rare bottles of all kinds. J. Gilbert Baird, 356 North Townview circle, has a large and interesting collection of miniature liquor, liqueur, and wine bottles which have never been opened. This is particularly fascinating because of the colors of the liquids.

Mrs. John C. Crouse, 62 Crouse avenue, paints character studies of Mexicans and Indians in native costumes, in water colors. At the present time a part of her collections is on display at the Mansfield Public library. She began the pictures several years ago after having lived in Mexico for a number of years.

Collecting sea and beach shells is a hobby with Mrs. Fred Dippman, Park avenue west road; Mrs. Vernon E. Vining, West Second street, and Miss Louise English, Park avenue west road, have enough china and fur dogs to hold a dog show of their own; Miss Edna L. Bookwalter, 472 Glessner, has a penchant for china elephants.

One of the most valuable collections of elephants in Mansfield is that of Mrs. Walter C. Stevens, Forest Hill road, who has elephants of teakwood, ivory, jade and bronze and other valuable metals, which have been brought to her from the far corners of the world by her mother, Mrs. Harriet Mansfield.

There are many enthusiastic collectors of stamps in Mansfield, but it is generally conceded that the most expensive and valuable is the property of Robert S. Gibson, Brinkerhoff avenue.

In the last few years photography has nosed stamp collecting out as hobby number one of the American people, while "candid camera fiends" are likely to pop up anywhere and any time.

uniforms, their shoes in shreds, stumbled through the passes of the snow clad Pyranees today to the safety of France.

"It was massacre or flight," Gen. Juan Callol, commander of the Loyalist 10th Army corps, said to French mobile guardsmen as he arrived at Luchon with a group of staff officers and civilian Loyalist leaders from the Huesca area.

Authorities estimated that by dawn between 3,000 and 4,000 troops of the Loyalist 31st Infantry division had reached the Luchon area in addition to an unknown number of civilians.

Their reports were that sufficient men to bring the total to 6,000 men of the 31st division alone were on the way and survivors of the 43rd Infantry division, estimated to number about 6,000 more, were reported somewhere in the mountains.

The civilian refugee total, and the prospect that many more would seek safety in France, caused emergency telephonic consultations among prefects of the frontier departments.

FIRST QUARTER BUILDING TOPS '37 BY $30,000

$100,000 Theater Boosts City Total for 3-Month Period to $195,000.

Despite the business recession, building construction in Mansfield during the first quarter of 1938, paced by a $100,000 theater was more than $30,000 ahead of the same period last year, a survey of building permits records showed today.

The number of residences under construction, however, is slightly less than last year, with valuations in new home construction down approximately $15,000. Thirteen homes have been started so far this year with an estimated valuation of $91,000, as compared with 19 homes valued at $106,400 in the corresponding period last year.

Total Last Year $165,000.

Total cost for all building projects for the three-month period last year, including remodeling work, alterations, residential, business and industrial construction, was shown at $165,288 as compared with the $195,500 for the same period in 1938.

March building this year was listed at $162,936, or nearly 500 per cent more than the $32,850 recorded for February, and twice the valuation figure shown for the same period in 1937.

Eight residential permits were issued last month as compared with the three for the month preceding. New homes for which permits were issued in March had an average value of $6,900 as compared with the February average of $9,000.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Friday, April 1. "Suffer fools gladly." (II Corinthians 11:19) Read I Corinthians 1:17-29.

This is "All Fools' Day"—hardly a Christian festival, yet not without its religious suggestion.

I know of no moral antiseptic or prophylactic so powerful, under certain circumstances, as a sense of humor. It gives instant immunity to many temptations. For he who can laugh at himself becomes thereby master of himself. A sense of humor turned to honest moral account is much better than to great solemnity.

But it was the idealist, the dreamer in advance of his time, of whom Saint Paul was thinking When we look back and see what their contemporaries said of the crack-brained inventors of the locomotive, the steamship, the automobile, the airplane, the wireless, we learn not to scoff too soon and too loudly. In fact our generation is prepared to believe that, in matters of material discovery anything is possible. We have yet to transfer and translate this willingness to suffer fools gladly—in our laboratories and workshops—into the terms of our politics, our education, our religion and our churches.

Prayer: O God, who hast revealed thyself most especially to the childlike mind, grant us such expectancy that we may not be numbered with the wise and prudent of this world from whom thy truest works are hidden. Amen.

600 HEAR TALK ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HERE

New Yorker, Member of Board of Lectureship, Speaks at High School.

A lecture on Christian Science, entitled, "Christian Science: Its Unlimited Possibilities," was delivered in the high school auditorium last night by Robert Stanley Ross, C. S. B., of New York City.

Ross, a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., spoke here to an audience of 600 under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Mansfield.

He said in part:

Doubtless some of us will recall the story about a man who one day set out to find the temple of fame. Believing it to be on the summit of a far-off mountain, he spent years reaching his destination, only to learn that the temple of fame was to be found in the midst of the valley whence he came. Similarly, it may be that many of us have sought a distant heaven, only to learn eventually that heaven is not to be found by going somewhere, whether here or hereafter, but by being practicably truthful, unselfish, and loving wherever we are, in the everyday walks of Life. To his own question, "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place?" the Psalmist replies, "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully."

No truer and more illuminating lines have ever been written than those which will be found on page 248 of Science and Health, where Mrs. Eddy says, "Let unselfishness, goodness, mercy, justice, health, holiness, love — the kingdom of heaven—reign within us, and sin, disease, and death will diminish until they finally disappear."

Beliefs Versus Needs.

Evidences of healing by spiritual means have become so widespread that most observing persons will now admit that Christian Science, rightly understood, destroys fear, bestows happiness and contentment, and promotes compassion and helpfulness. They will admit also that Christian Science is capable of making healthy and strong those who are hopelessly ill; that it can set free those who are addicted to narcotics, alcohol, nicotine, and other enslaving drugs; and that it can make discordant homes harmonious, comfort the sorrowing, and inspire the discouraged with new hope and fresh initiative.

That many are responding to its compassionate appeal is evident in the world-wide and rapid growth of the Christian Science movement. "But," someone may be saying, "why does not everyone respond to it? If what you say is true, why does not the whole world eagerly embrace its teaching?" To those unacquainted with the carnal mind's antagonism to spiritual truth, these are hard questions. Only Christian Science can answer them satisfactorily.

No doubt, all professing Christians believe that, if they had lived in the days of Jesus, they would have unhesitatingly embraced his teaching and become his followers. To have seen him heal leprosy, blindness, insanity, deafness, epilepsy, and raise the dead would—we now confidently say—have convinced everyone. But instead of joyfully accepting the healings as unquestionable proofs of divine power, some of those who were witnesses became enraged, declared the healings were the work of the devil, and hastened to report Jesus to the authorities at Jerusalem. The latter, in turn, sought to put him to death, lest all the people should follow him. To defend their theological beliefs, even to the extent of shedding innocent blood, seemed to be more important than to learn the practicable truth about God and man.

It is this same mental attitude which today prevents some persons, even when in great need, from accepting the helping hand of Christian Science, notwithstanding the proofs of healing which it presents.

Now, my friends, who among you wants to shut out helpfulness? Who wants to permit his fears, his doubts, and his suspicions to rob him of the limitless opportunities for good which Christian Science reveals? Thanks to Mary Baker Eddy, never again need anyone starve spiritually; for she has shown us that the bread of Life is always at hand for the asking. She has shown that the truth explained and proved by the Master is omni-present. Through her teaching, this truth is now available to all who are willing to receive it.

FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1938.

As we understand Neville Chamberlain, Britain is not too proud to fight but isn't starting anything.

Even in America we have our devastating controversies. Lately we're fighting about swing music.

A Fortunate Land.

GENERAL HUGH JOHNSON in his newspaper column reminds yammering fellow-citizens that, with 6 per cent of the world's area and 7 per cent of its population, we have 70 per cent of its oil, 60 per cent of its wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of its copper and iron, 40 per cent of its lead and coal, 60 per cent of its telephone service and 33 per cent of its railroads. Also that our 7 per cent of the world's people consume 48 per cent of all the coffee produced, 21 per cent of the sugar, 72 per cent of the silk, 42 per cent of the iron, 47 per cent of the copper, 69 per cent of the petroleum and 80 per cent of the automobiles.

We also have more than half of the world's gold and silver money and more than three-fourths of its banking resources. With 130,000,000 people, we have the buying and consuming power of 500,000,000 Europeans or 1,000,000,000 Asiatics.

If we could stand off and look at ourselves, as less fortunate nations look at us, we would realize what we are—the most fortunate nation in all history. Yet we're feeling poor and miserable, and millions of us are in real trouble about the everlasting problem of making a living, preserving our mental and physical health and keeping up with the neighbors.

All we need is to pass around more easily and fairly the material blessings that we have. And we may never succeed in doing that unless we can regain the tolerant, friendly, sociable spirit of cooperation that we used to have in pioneer days.

When we had little, we shared it. Now that we have much, we don't seem able to pass it around.

Our Park Problem.

PERHAPS you have read lately a bit of comment and agitation for an improvement in the city park system.

No one who has looked at the city park system as it exists today could argue very convincingly that the parks are in what might be called "A No. 1" condition. They aren't.

Within the past few days a nationally-known expert on parks has been in the city. Within the past few weeks, the Chamber of Commerce, through a committee, has been attempting to get an improvement system started.

The parks expert, A. D. Taylor, recommended that a park commission be set up, with no political connections of control. The significance and validity of his proposal is immediately apparent.

There certainly can be no reason why a commission, intended to improve the status of Mansfield as a city, should have to concern itself with politics. By no stretch of the imagination can the administration of a park system be called a political activity.

As a physical asset, parks of the proper type have a value that should not be underestimated.

Mayor Claude Hunter has indicated that he feels park development should be placed in a category untouched by politics.

He should be commended on that stand.

In Mansfield there are certainly plenty of influential people interested in parks to take the issue in hand, develop a plan and put it into effect.

It ought to be done.

Barriers Against Truth.

IN THE 25 years of its operation the Rockefeller Foundation has been international in outlook and humanitarian purpose. Its original objective, "the well-being of mankind throughout the world," knew no boundary lines of race or geography.

Lately it has encountered barriers. It has had to curtail much of its work abroad. Says Dr. Raymond Fosdick, president of the Foundation, in his annual report:

"Objective scholarship is possible only where thought is free—and freedom can exist only where there is tolerance, only where there are no 'Keep Out' signs against the inquisitive and questioning mind. Disinterested research cannot survive in an atmosphere of compulsion or repression.

"It withers under the efforts of governments to impose uniform ideologies and to circumscribe in the interests of a dominant regime the area of intellectual liberty. Particularly in the broad range of subjects covered by the social sciences, and in the humanities as well, the world has recently witnessed in several countries the progressive disintegration of creative scholarship."

And so the Foundation has been stopped by barriers raised against the free search for truth. Formerly it operated in 52 different countries, of which 23 were in Europe. Nearly half its appropriated funds went to foreign countries. There must be many in those lands today who realize the folly of shutting out such research and generosity.

Historic Canal Project.

THE federal government plans to buy the old Chesapeake and Ohio canal which runs from Washington to Cumberland, Md. The idea is to develop part of it for recreational purposes. Along the route lie historic toll houses, taverns and interesting old locks. The property includes a right-of-way for a highway from the Lincoln Memorial in Washington to Gettysburg, via Harper's Ferry.

Legend says that George Washington did the surveying for the canal. At any rate, he originated the project, seeing the advantage of making the Potomac navigable from tidewater to Cumberland and connecting it by common roads and portages with the tributaries of the Ohio river west of the Alleghanies. The plan was delayed by the Revolutionary war and later by other obstacles. Construction was not begun until 1828. It was finished in 1850. It was never a financial success and finally was used only for hauling coal.

It should be possible to make an attractive recreation area of the region, with fishing, boating and swimming, much pleasant scenery, hiking and motoring. If the ancient buildings are well restored and maintained, the whole group could become a fascinating historic monument.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

Pessimism that has ben sweeping the financial world—and of course the unemployed — may change to optimism within a few weeks. Many large undertakings, through federal aid, are getting under way.

It may be said by critics that this is "merely government spending," but if it puts corporations and men back to work, and they in turn pay taxes, and public works are established in return, there is a permanent return. As it is, relief or dole counts up as a dead loss.

The upturn, imperceptible at first, may make a sharp upturn toward the end of the year. This even may catch many unprepared. Such is the belief—or hope—of men who have been examining the number of engineering projects throughout the United States.

Whether the upturn will come in time to aid New Deal men in the 1938 election is a question. It may.

The depression now is expected to be followed by an upturn till the latter part of 1940—which many would explain as another example of "Roosevelt luck."

IRRETRACEABLE?

"Turn back to normal!" business cries—in all lands.

But how can the governments—whether they be New Deal (U. S.), Tory (England), Socialist (France), Nazi (Germany), Fascist (Italy), Communist (Soviet Union) or Militarist (Japan)—turn back?

The trend is so strongly state capitalism (or, as in the Soviet Union, state socialism) that no matter who gains control of the government, there seems no stopping it.

Suppose it were possible to stop it, how long would a government remain in power after stopping it? Not long. People would starve. Business itself would be destroyed completely.

The solution lies ahead, not back. The trouble is lack of a plan. Each people fears to venture forth with a bold plan, believing it will be trapped in some change that will destroy its institutions. As to that, Old Father Time has a way of destroying the institutions of those who do not change—in fact, of destroying peoples altogether who do not change. Glance back over history.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

As long as the different peoples and nations call one another names and do not try to understand the problems of one another, there will be no solution.

Each country is developing its own brand of nationalism to an ultimate degree—which means extinction of the other fellow. One sees how it works in Europe and in Asia. And, if each American state were a separate nation, it would be as bad here.

What can be done to bring peoples together, to let bygones be bygones?

Well, a few mothers and fathers in Germany and the United States have been taking matters into their own hands. Last year, 50 German high school boys and girls visited Cleveland, and 50 Cleveland high school boys and girls returned the visit. They stayed with mothers and fathers of the friends they visited in each case. This year these exchange visits will be duplicated.

I have talked with the young folk of both sides. All hatred of nationalities has disappeared. The young folk merely hope their older folk could understand, "those people are the same as we are."

It is true that the German youth are deeply impregnated with Nazism. But it is equally true that the American youth is as deeply impregnated with a belief that "nothing is any good except in the United States." Beneath the surface, however, the two groups are finding a deeper loyalty, a deeper understanding—to and of humanity as a whole, regardless of nationality, race or creed.

Yes, such interchanges of youth are "dangerous"—to nationalistic hatreds and to all that is based on such intolerance.

IN AFTERGLOW

This is set down that you may know
All there can be in afterglow.
An aged man the story told
Of recompense in growing old.

"Because I have no friends betrayed,
Because with honor progress made,
Because I love the sun and knew
God in the wind and rain and dew,

"Now I am rich in memories,
I know the Infinite in trees,
Can count my years in happiness.
As time for me grows less and less."

APRIL FOOL!

Democrats Can't Lose, But New Deal Can

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The Democrats cannot possibly be voted out of control of the United States senate in next November's elections.

The present senatorial lineup is: Democrats, 76; Republicans, 16; Independent Republican, 1; Progressive, 1; Farmer-Laborite, 2.

But merely 32 senators are up for re-election this year.

Of these 6 are Republicans. The Democrats number 24. Progressive and Farmer-Laborite, 1 each.

If the Republicans retain their six seats, they still will have 10 holdovers. If they gain all the others (which is a ridiculous assumption) they will have a total of 42. The Democrats will retain 52. Fifty-two to 42 is a fairly liberal normal majority. That is not counting a remaining Independent and Farmer-Laborite each.

It is the best possible arithmetical Republican showing, and it overstrains the imagination to think of it.

NOR IN THE HOUSE

Theoretically, the house of representatives can flop over, because ALL the representatives will be due for re-election.

But, of representatives, 333 now are Democrats, 88 are Republicans, 8 are Progressives, 5 are Farmer-Laborites, and there is a vacancy to be filled. Is anyone rash enough to look for such a landslide in the Republican direction as to give the G. O. P. a majority in the next congress' lower chamber?

Certainly not.

DANGER IN PRIMARIES

Nevertheless, the ADMINISTRATION can be beaten in the coming campaign.

If so, it will not be beaten on election day in November. It will be beaten at the nominating primaries, just beginning.

The administration does not care a cent's worth whom the Republicans may nominate. Its interest is in getting its own kind of candidates nominated on its own senatorial and representorial tickets, here, there and everywhere.

The White House has not had trouble with Republicans.

It has expected their opposition and there has not been enough of it to signify numerically. Its control of its own nominal congressional following, however, has been more than uncertain.

* * *

G. O. P.'S OPPORTUNITY

As between so-called Democrats and "Democrats" the president has had a small margin in favor of his policies.

Yet it has been so narrow a margin that the Republicans vote has come mightily close to being a deciding factor against the executive mansion. If Republicanism gains a little in November, and if anti-administration Democrats at least have held their own at the Nominating primaries, the Roosevelt administration has lost, regardless of party labels.

The shift does not have to be as considerable as is indicated by 76 to 16 or 333 to 88 congressional party divisions.

The reorganization bill, an administration measure, squeaked through the senate by merely an eyelash, 49 to 42, despite the 76 to 16 party division.

All Fools' day, Friday, April 1. Venus and Moon in conunction. Arbor day in Northern Arizona and Tennessee. Siamese New Year. It used to be New Year's day everywhere, before adoption of the Gregorian calendar. Previous to the change, a great festival corresponding to the Roman Saturnalia ended on April 1, when visits were paid and gifts were exchanged. Afterward, pretended gifts and mock ceremonial visits were made on April 1 to make fools of those who had forgotten the change of date. Hence the origin of April Fools's day.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Whose Prices Are High or Low?.

By HARLEY L. LUTZ
Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University

The more carefully the latest White House statement on price policy is examined, the more amazing some of its implications are found to be. It is preposterous, of course, for any government to assume that it has an obligation to regulate or control all prices, or to imply that its economic intelligence would be equal to this task, even if such regulation were admitted to be a proper governmental function. But this assumption is made. It has been a cardinal principle of the current political doctrine. Therefore, we should study this latest declaration of price policy to see how the price regulators would approach the job.

The central thought in the announced price regulation policy is that some prices are too high while other prices are too low. Too high or too low for what, or for whom? The statement does not explain, except by an equally vague reference to balanced price relations. Yet here is something, obviously, which calls for a deal of explaining. When a price is criticized as being too high, is the viewpoint that of the consumer who must pay it, or that of the producer who is trying to cover his production costs? If a price is too low, does it mean that the consumer is getting too good a bargain, or that the producer should be permitted, or compelled, to charge enough to yield a fair profit above production costs?

The administration officials who prepared this price policy statement would doubtless reply that they were considering the interests of both producers and consumers. The program, it is said, "seeks a balanced system of prices such as will promote a balanced expansion of production." Again the statement is indefinite, for it does not say what it is that production is to be in balance against. Presumably the thought is that production is to be in balance against consumption.

If this is the thought, then the economist would say that the establishment and maintenance of such a balance is the function of the price system. If a system of prices is to perform this function, however, it must be free and not controlled. The object of any price is to move goods. The producer's motive in quoting prices is to sell his product; and, if possible, to realize a return that will cover his costs and yield at least a reasonable profit above cost. This implies a conflict of interest between producer and consumer. If the cost of production is high, the consumer cannot benefit except as the producer sacrifices. But the statement completely ignores costs.

It holds that those industries which have reduced output and raised prices, in the effort to cover their costs, should reverse this policy and expand output. Here, it is said, is the way to greater profits. But it may be the way to greater losses, especially if the expansion should touch off further demands for substantial wage increases. We are told, also, that agricultural prices should be raised. The general formula for an increase of profits is to raise agricultural prices and expand industrial output.

The only way to benefit both the producer and the consumer is to establish those conditions of production which lead to the lowest possible unit costs, whether in agricultural or in industry. Then the retail price of the product will be low, yet good wages can be paid and a fair profit can be earned by the producer. The price policy statement reveals no recognition of this fundamental requirement. In fact, there is nothing in the recent record of administration policy that would suggest an understanding of this matter. The reckless increase of governmental costs, all of which fall eventually on the economic system, is clear evidence that there has been complete indifference to the basic problem of how prices are fixed. The use of severely repressive and punitive taxation is further evidence, were it needed, that those who are ready to regulate prices have no concern about the economic forces which they are proposing to regulate.

The price policy statement defends a program of arbitrary and artificial price control which would raise some prices and lower others, according to pre-conceived, bureaucratic notions of where, and to whom, the control policy should do the most good. In operation, it will be a question of where, and to whom, such a policy will do the most harm.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE TEMPLE OF GOD: Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.—Revelations 3:12.

Let's Look Around

Charleston, Where Much History Was Made.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

CHARLESTON, S. C.—Whether it be historic setting or sheer beauty that is sought by the tourist, Charleston, South Carolina—in early springtime—probably comes nearest of any single city to meeting the requirements.

Only a little out of the path of the direct way home from Florida's east coast, a visit to Charleston at this season amply repays for the extra time and distance involved.

Laying claim to being "America's most historic city," Charleston not only merits this slogan but also, in the city and its immediate environs, has such a wealth of extensive floral gardens that visitors by the thousands are attracted here from every part of the country during the early months of each year.

Occupying the point of a peninsula formed by the meeting of Ashley and Cooper rivers, Charleston's battery water front looks across three miles to historic Fort Sumter, which was fired upon by Confederates from Fort Johnson, just to the south, on April 12, 1861—marking the opening of the war between the states.

At nearby Fort Moultrie, on Sullivan's island, an important victory of the Revolutionary war was won by American forces. Both Moultrie and Sumter are still fortified, and six miles north of the city is a U. S. navy yard—all indicating that this country is not overlooking the need for continued military preparedness, in the event need should arise.

Of principal interest to visitors in Charleston proper, are its many "firsts," for this city's history dates back to 1670, when it was founded as an English colony, and by 1775 it had become one of the most important seaports of the new country.

It was from here, for instance, that the first cotton was shipped to England in 1784, and the first chamber of commerce was organized in 1773.

It is the spires of ancient churches that break the even skyline of the older part of Charleston, with St. Michael's, St. Philip's, the Cathedral of St. John and the old French Huguenot church most frequently pointed out.

A practice of early time in Charleston and other old cities was to have a burial yard adjoining the church—and in many cases these have remained undisturbed through the years—sometimes giving solemn tone to what have become busy sections of a city in which modern and ancient are strangely woven.

Crossing to Sullivan's Island, on which Edgar Allen Poe wrote his famous story, "The Gold Bug," motorists pass over the new Cooper river bridge, three miles in length, with undulations that give a roller coaster effect. It is regarded as among the finest examples of bridge-building to be found in the country—and is the second highest vehicular span in the world.

ACCESS to Fort Sumter is gained only by boat, it being Capt. S. E. Baitary who 11 years ago developed the idea of conducting a boat trip to the old fort and around the harbor. The idea proved so popular with tourists that he has continued it as a seasonal activity ever since—with a vivid and historically accurate recital of the historic incidents associated with the fort and an interesting description of the crude armament then available for either defense or attack.

* * *

Among other "firsts" of which Charleston makes proud claim are: The first regular steam railway service in America; the first submarine successfully used in warfare; the first fire insurance company in America, organized in 1731; the first prescription drug store, opened in 1780, and the first Masonic lodge, Solomon, No. 1.

BUT it is by its world-famous gardens, more than by its rich historical background, that Charleston attracts enough visitors each season to more than double its normal 63,000 population—and it is to these magnificent garden tracts that some attention should be paid.

For tourist inspection of the three outstanding gardens a circular tour is suggested, reaching Magnolia, Middleton and Cypress gardens, in the order named, or reversing the route if preferred, with either passing through the little town of Summerville, which, in itself, has been made into a veritable garden spot during its March azalea season.

In the Magnolia gardens, 12 miles north of Charleston, is seen the result of more than a century of development of the English style of landscaping adopted by the Rev. John Grimke Drayton, grandfather of C. Norwood Hastie, present owner. These gardens took the name, Magnolia-on-the-Ashley, from the many fine specimens of magnolia trees found on the 25 acres, but its camellias and gorgeous azaleas have won it international fame. It was the late John Galsworthy, famous English writer and painter, who said: "I specialize in gardens and freely assert that none in the world is so beautiful as this."

THREE miles to the north are the Middleton gardens, which also date back to colonial times for their start in 1740, when Henry Middleton, late president of the Continental Congress, sent to England for an experienced landscape gardener, under whose direction 100 slaves worked ten years to complete the formal terraces, walks and ornamental pools in such a way as to give well-ordered beauty without disturbing the natural loveliness of the 45-acre tract over which these gardens extend.

Here is seen the giant Middleton Oak, estimated to be nine hundred years old, with a circumference of 37 feet and a spread of 144 feet—an oak that was centuries old when Columbus discovered America.

CYPRESS GARDENS, reached after a swing to the north and east through Summerville, are of newer development as a public attraction but date far back in the growth of the immense cypress trees which provide a wonderful setting for the picturesque beauty encountered along the miles of paths and waterways made available to visitors, a feature of these gardens being that small boats are provided in which trips can be made to many alluring parts of this appealing showplace.

A noted landscape architect wrote of Cypress gardens, "Here is a peaceful place of deep mystery and great beauty that draws people back to it again and again."

Charleston is a city that you are glad to have visited—and to which you will wish to come again. Each springtime you will think of its gardens—once you have seen them.

Listen, World!

'Couldst Thou Not Watch?'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

It's a strange thing, perhaps, I'm asking you this night.

The wind is wailing as I write . . . and the deep, dark lanes of the forest are lonely and blind . . . and I'm troubled too. Perhaps that is why my mind keeps dwelling on the loneliness of that young One so long ago. That One who was hardly more than a lad—yet who must face the death of a God, with the dawn's dawning.

And do you remember, after the supper together, how He went away—as so often He had gone away — to some loved place to pray? Only this time it was to that sad place they called Gethsemane . . . the Mount of Olives. A dim and quiet place of twisted trees where people wept — such trees as bend beneath my cabin window now in driving rain.

There, when He'd left His comrades to keep watch, He went away . . . into that inner circle where there were but tangled leaves and rocks—and maybe God. And there He prayed. Prayed deeply, dreadfully—as sometimes you and I have prayed—that this dark cup might pass—

"Please, God, let this cup pass! . . ."

Then on and on, because He still was young, and full of love of life and dreams, that sobbing cry—

"Let this cup pass . . . please, God, let this cup pass!"

But did God hear? Or care? He was so torn . . . so frightened in His poor, racked human flesh, He could not, just then, know. And so . . . as any troubled lad would go . . . He went back to His friends, to share the ghastly fear—

And found they slept!

And stumbled, back again, to lonely prayer.

And bled . . . and wept . . .

But still they slept.

Then dawn was near. And through the dim, gnarled trees the soldiers came . . . and Judas with the kiss of shame . . . and death—His hour to die . . . and that last, lonely cry before the end—

"COULDST THOU NOT WATCH ONE HOUR?"

Tonight I'm thinking of that cry. And, through the wakeful hours, there comes to me the wail of those who plead and bleed in some Gethsemane . . .

CAN YOU NOT WATCH ONE HOUR?

You lie so safe and warm—

Have you no thought for homeless millions in the storm?

Is there no prayer for those whose hearts are trapped by fanged despair?

The times are wild . . .

Are there no tears for some poor Chinese mother and her child?

No gentle, yearning touch, to heal the pain of those who face the bloody hell of Spain?

No pity for the tortured Jews who plead—

"COULDST THOU NOT WATCH" WHILE MANGLED MILLIONS BLEED?

Timely Editorial

Waves Are Still High.

Considering the steady storms encountered in the last five years and the seasickness to which most of the passengers have been subjected, it is scant comfort for Americans to be told by President Roosevelt that "the old Ship of State is still on its same course."

What the people want to hear from their skipper at this time is not announcement of a reckless determination to plough through the waves but the reassuring word that the boat is going to put into port and stay there until the weather clears and it is safe to venture once again into open waters. That is the course the careful captain would pursue.—Boston Transcript.

Liquor Inspector's Expense Accounts Stay Unpaid.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson has announced he is withholding $400 in current expense warrants for Joseph Maiden, Canton district inspector for the state liquor department's enforcement division.

Testimony obtained by the senate committee which investigated state departments disclosed that tmounts on Maiden's expense accounts in 1936 had been "raised." The committee demanded that he be discharged. But he was retained after being suspended temporarily.

Ferguson said that as soon as the committee returns a "little black book," which contains information concerning liquor department operations, he would launch an extensive audit of all expense vouchers filed by liquor inspectors.

FIRST HOMEGROWN VEGETABLES OF SEASON AT FOOD MARKETS

Homegrown vegetables began to make an appearance at food markets this week, with green onions coming from near Mansfield, early spring leaf lettuce grown near Bellville, and rhubarb from East Mansfield gardens.

While a few vegetables have raised in price, the greater portion has come down. Green peas are luxuries because of the price, and head lettuce has raised two cents on the head, but fresh green spinach is selling at a number of markets for two pounds for 15 cents, and green and yellow beans are around 12 cents a pound. Wild dandelions are reasonable considering the work involved in getting them. Asparagus is as good quality as home grown, and is a little cheaper than it was last week.

Tomatoes are still coming in, both the hothouse variety and the sun-ripened variety from Florida. Radishes, red and white, are a good value now, and cucumbers are at their best although a little expensive.

For Saturday there will be fresh water-cress and bunches of mint; pots of chives, and bunches of leeks. All of the regular vegetables for this time of year will be found on the markets.

Louisiana strawberries, honeydew and Casaba melons head the list of fruits. A few merchants will have fresh grapes and plums while pears and pineapples are obtainable at most fruit markets. Florida oranges and grapefruit are cheap, while California oranges remain about the same level.

STUDIES PARK BOARD PLANS

C. of C. Group Inquires Into Feasibility of Placing Question on Ballot.

A Chamber of Commerce subcommittee today was studying the feasibility of placing on the ballot at the August primary a proposal to establish a Mansfield parks commission.

A commission, free of politics, with complete control over the city's parks was advocated by A. D. Taylor, nationally known authority on landscape architecture, in a talk here Tuesday night.

G. V. Sowers, chairman of the chamber's parks and city beautification committee, said that a sub-committee of three, comprised of J. C. Finefrock, O. C. Henkel and J. A. Geiger had been named to inquire into the number of signatures necessary on petitions to place the question before the voters.

He explained that the committee has discussed at some length the commission form of park administration and may ask the C. of C. board of directors to endorse the plan to put the question on the ballot.

Sowers said the number of signatures required was the question at present.

NEW VACCINE

Scientists Develop Solution to Combat Jungle Fever.

NEW YORK—(LP)—The Rockefeller foundation has reported that its scientists had developed an effective vaccine for jungle yellow fever, a malady against which weapons used to combat urban yellow fever had failed.

The vaccine—perfected during the past year—not only promises immunity from the disease for the jungle populations of two continents, the foundation said, but also provides an effective safeguard against spread of the fever to civilized regions.

The report, written by Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the foundation, was issued in advance of the full review of the institution's activities in 1937.

The imperial crown of India cost about $300,000.

3 MOVES URGED TO SOLVE CITY TRAFFIC TANGLE

Town Hall Hears Proposals For Parking Meters, More Police, Traffic Lights.

The adoption of parking meters, stricter traffic law enforcement through the addition of more policemen and two traffic lights on Wayne street near the Westinghouse plant were urged last night at a Town Hall meeting as means of solving Mansfield's traffic problem.

The proposed installation of parking meters, which is being studied by a special committee in city council, received the approval of the group. Representatives of the Retail Merchants association, Junior Association of Commerce and the traffic safety council, suggested that council order installation of meters on a 90-day or six-months trial basis.

Eugene Earick, secretary of the Junior Association of Commerce, said that organization had sent inquiries to other cities the size of Mansfield where meters are in use and had mailed questionnaires to Mansfield merchants to obtain opinions on the meter plan.

"One of our objectives," Earick said, "will be to educate merchants away from the habit of saying 'no' to a proposal before they have studied it."

Favors Trial For Meters.

Adoption of the meters on a trial was urged by Louis A. Ott of the Retail Merchants association, who said they will provide "cheap parking and eliminate the necessity of the city giving away its streets as parking places."

Merchants are in favor of the parking plan that will best serve the people who come downtown to shop, he asserted.

With five members of the Westinghouse safety council in the group, C. I. VanDerau, manager of the plant, said traffic lights and flasher signals are needed at the Fourth and Fifth street intersections with Wayne street because of the congestion in that industrial section.

R. L. Odson, member of the Westinghouse delegation, added his approval to the suggestion for more lights in the city's industrial area and then pointed out that the Fifth and Elm street intersection also needs a safety light if a steady flow of traffic is to be maintained.

Virtually every speaker expressed approval of Police Chief Meade K. Bates' drive for more policemen.

"If we want more protection, though, we must be ready to pay for it," E. M. Olin, head of the Traffic Safety council, said. "Mansfield has an extremely low tax rate," he added, "yet we complain of the expense when improvements are mentioned."

Praising the work of the Traffic Safety council, which was outlined to the group by Olin, Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, asserted that "results of a safety drive don't blossom over night. It takes a long-range approach to a safety plan and intelligent study to make a program produce results."

Urging that the council sponsor another "safety week" such as the city had last summer, Williams said "we have real cause to be happy over the council's efforts if we save one life a year."

Harold W. Arlin, chairman of the town hall group, suggested that parking and traffic regulation plans no be confined to the downtown section alone but extended to the more dangerous suburban traffic lanes. He commended the city administration for its efforts to get protection for grade crossings in the city.

BOXER ON TRIAL

Bryan Youth to Face Jury in Indiana 'Insult' Slaying.

ANGOLA, Ind.—(AP)—A jury of nine men and three women was seated today for the trial of Edwin Willett, 18, Bryan, O., amateur boxer, charged with manslaughter in the death last summer of Chester Crawford, Auburn, Ind., truck driver.

Crawford died of a fractured skull after he was knocked down by Willett when, defense attorneys said, Crawford insulted a girl companion of Willett.

cabin at 5:30 a. m. Wednesday. Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler said the slain man had been dead possibly 11 or 12 hours when his body was found at 6:45 p. m. Wednesday.

The sheriff clung to the theory that Reed was beaten to death by a revenge-bent murderer who attacked him from behind as he stood at the table in the kitchen of his three-room cottage on Seventh avenue.

A robbery motive was eliminated as soon as the body was examined Wednesday night, when $17.12 was found in the pockets of Reed's overalls.

Officers continued to search the area near the cabin for the other end of a piece of gas pipe which was believed to have been the weapon used by the assailant.

Coroner Winbigler said Reed had been struck at least 11 times after he was felled. A short section of the pipe, which had been freshly broken, was found near the body.

Sheriff Long turned the pipe over to E. C. Fuller, identification expert of the Mansfield police department, for examination for fingerprints. Fuller also was to examine dishes from the kitchen table, beside which Reed was found. One of the plates had been broken, apparently by a glancing blow from the murderer's weapon. There was no other evidence of a struggle in the tiny room.

Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Robinson said the weapon may have been thrown into a small stream near the Reed cabin but added that the muddy water following the recent rains had made it impossible to locate an object in the creek.

Private funeral services for Reed will be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the Jones funeral home, with Rev. R. E. Tropf, pastor of the Mansfield Gospel tabernacle officiating. Burial will be in the Butler cemetery.

8th Victim Dies After Treatment At Cancer Clinic

ORLANDO, Fla. — (AP) — Mrs. Lydia Morrison, 49, of Orlando, died early today, bringing to eight the number of fatalities among patients given injections of a serum for treatement of cancer.

Six women died Wednesday and a seventh yesterday after receiving injections of the serum. Symptoms resembled tetanus (lockjaw) physician said, in each case.

Three other patients—two men and a woman—who had taken the serum, known as ensol, and said by Dr. T. A. Neal to have been administered at his clinic from a single bottle, remained gravely ill.

"We have not given up hope in any of these cases," hospital attaches said.

Physicians said tetanus treatments had no effect on those who died, a fact which puzzled them.

Telegrams Stream Into Offices of Solons In Fight to Kill Reorganization Bill.

"In evaluating any protests from catholic sources, it would be well to investigate whether these protests have been provoked by misinformation in regard to the bill."

Few references were made in yesterday's house debate to President Roosevelt's denial that he aspired to become a dictator.

Rep. Woodruff told the house that "We are moving in the direction of a dictatorship." Rep. Lamneck (D.-Ohio) said labor fears the bill "because it is a definite move toward dictatorship."

Recalls Action In '33.

Chairman Cochran (D.-Mo.) of the reorganization committee, on the other hand, recalled that in 1933 the president had been given a measure of authority to reorganize and that again last August the house had passed a reorganization bill.

"Was there any cry of dictatorship then?" he asked.

One of the longer denunciations of the bill came from Lamneck, who said its real objective was to perpetuate the Roosevelt regime, perhaps with WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins as president.

Hopkins, he contended, is certain to be named secretary of a proposed new department of welfare which would make permanent the "octopus-like" relief machine as the "most potent force in the United States for many years to come."

Rep. Warren (D.-N. C.), who played a large part in framing the general reorganization provisions, remarked:

"Congress can try from now until eternity and will never make a dent in the bureaucracy that exists today. It can only be done by one man.

"If you lack confidence in that man, if you distrust him, . . . then you ought not to vote for this bill."

N. Y. FOG LIFTS

Harbor Traffic Restored After Two Liners Are Delayed.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Fog, wafted away by a southeasterly breeze, permitted normal harbor traffic today and two luxury liners, which had been forced to anchor overnight, continued their interrupted way.

PICKS COMMITTEES TO ARRANGE FOR TERRITORY CELEBRATION

Committees to arrange for the observance in Mansfield on May 2 of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest territory were announced today by John F. Correll, general chairman of the celebration committee.

The groups will plan a parade and city-wide observance of the historic event the day an ox team caravan stops in Mansfield on its trip through the states originally included in the territory.

Committee chairmen are: Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, reception committee; Floyd Dent, Boy Scout executive, Johnny Appleseed blockhouse committee; Paul M. Eliot, finance committee; Atty. Francis O'Brien, commercial display committee, and Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, publicity committee.

Members of the executive committee who will serve with Correll are Rev. R. C. Goebel, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church; Rev. Swoyer, Mrs. David Boals, Floyd Dent and Paul W. Williams.

A parade committee chairman will be named later, Correll said.

The McVey post, American Legion, has agreed to co-operate with the general committee in organizing and directing a parade through the city, which will be one of the highlights of the celebration here.

Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools, who is honorary chairman of the Mansfield observance committee, today urged organizations in the city to join in the celebration, asserting that "the occasion, aside from the mere aspect of spectacular entertainment, contains educational and inspirational values which must not be disregarded."

Members of the general committee appointed by Correll to assist in planning the local observance are:

Ralph Chapman, Rev. G. E. Swoyer, C. F. Beddard, Rev. R. C. Goebel, Mayor C. M. Hunter, R. W. Vaughn, G. A. Marshall, V. H. Lodde, Harry J. Dotson, R. O. Richards, Paul Eliot, C. L. Council Hurries, Has to Pass New Sidewalk Measure

City council last night approved legislation providing for the construction and repair of city sidewalks and again authorizing the hiring of a sidewalk inspector, after an ordinance passed eight days ago had been repealed.

In their hurry to provide for work relief at a meeting March 22, council passed a measure calling for the hiring of a sidewalk inspector, but failed to incorporate in the legislation authorization for the construction and repair of the walks.

Besides authorizing the employment of a sidewalk inspector, already named by Mayor Claude M. Hunter, council authorized Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert to file an application with the Works Progress administration for aid in financing the construction and repair of the city sidewalks by providing labor involved on the project.

The measure also authorized the service director to make the necessary improvements at the rate of 14 cents per square foot for five-inch deep walks. Provisions call for property owners to deposit in advance the necessary funds to meet their share of the cost.

SALARIES CUT

Office Workers In 'Big Three' Tire Companies Get Pay Slash.

AKRON —(INS)— Salaried employes of this city's "Big Three" rubber companies today received wage reductions ranging from 10 to 20 per cent.

The reductions will affect all brackets of office workers employed by the B. F. Goodrich company, the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, both in and out of Akron. It was estimated aproximately 8,500 would be affected.

RAILROAD USES TRUCKS TO CARRY MAIL AS 2 TRAINS ARE REMOVED

Substitute mail truck service for communities along the B. & O. railroad between Newark and Willard was provided today by the railroad as two passenger trains were removed by authority of the state utilities commission.

The trucks went into operation today, with one going north, arriving in Mansfield at 9:55 a. m., and another southbound due at 7 p. m. Trains Nos. 47 and 48, operating between Newark and Willard weer discontinued today because of lack of patronage.

Removal of the two trains leaves only one passenger train each way a day through Mansfield on the B. & O.

Authorization to discontinue permanently two local passenger trains between Mansfield and Toledo had been granted today to the Pennsylvania railroad which removed the trains last Dec. 9 on a temporary permit. The railroad said the trains, Nos. 418 and 443, had been operated at a loss.

Through passenger service and mail transportation will be provided between the two cities by three trains daily each way, J. E. Young, local ticket agent for the company, said.

Bequests Made In Martin Will Approved as Court Fight Ends

Bequests as ordered in the will of the late William B. Martin, former president of the Martin Hardware company, were approved today in probate court following the action yesterday of Judge C. H. Huston and a common pleas court jury, in upholding the will.

Probate Judge C. J. Anderson said all activities of the executor, A. E. Courtney, toward settlement of the estate and distributing amounts listed in the will to the legatees, which were halted last June when the suit to break the will was filed, can be resumed immediately.

The action was brought by Allen B. Martin, Mansfield, a nephew, who received a $1,000 bequest from the estate which had been appraised at about $75,000, mostly in stocks and bonds.

Allen charged that Roeliff Martin, Cleveland, half-brother of Mr. Martin, had "unduly influenced" the aged man in making the will two weeks before his death in January, 1937.

A directed verdict for the defense in upholding the will was signed yesterday by a jury in common pleas court after the plaintiff's counsel, Attys. Jesse Vickery, Cleveland, and C. F. Creedman, Mansfield, admitted they had insufficient evidence to continue the case. Atty. Vickery urged Judge Huston to sustain the motion for a verdict which was submitted by Atty. William F. Black, counsel for the defendants.

Courtney testified during the three-day trial of the suit that total assets of the estate would amount to "around $82,000, with liabilities totaling more than $20,000."

MORE TERROR

Flood Threats Adds to Plight of Victims of Tornadoes.

(By Associated Press)

A flood threat arose today in southeastern Missouri while reconstruction crews tackled their big job in the rest of the midwestern sector where tornadoes killed 36 persons Wednesday and caused property losses approaching $2,000,000.

In the Missouri "bootheel," one of the regions hit by the series of twisters, the St. Francis and Black rivers threatened trouble, but perhaps not until the crest arrives next week. High water danger abated in Arkansas.

HOLDS FUND FOR TVA QUIZ SHORT

Norris Says $50,000 Appropriation Should Be Doubled.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Norris (Ind-D) expressed the belief today that a congressional committee would need double its $50,000 appropriation to investigate the Tennessee Valley Authority.

As soon as President Roosevelt signs the investigation resolution, which went to him today, Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead will appoint five members from each house to the investigating committee.

Norris estimated that, under the ordinary course of complex congressional inquiries, $50,000 might not last more than two or three months.

ASKS ACTION ON SLUM CLEARING

at the meeting and explain how the slum clearance projects are conducted.

Hunter said he was interested in the project from the standpoint that it provided comfortable, sanitary homes for persons in the lower income brackets, and at the same time eliminated areas which are a social and financial liability to the city.

"The elimination of the slum areas as a move for improvement in the health and moral conditions of the community alone is worthy of consideration," Hunter declared.

He pointed out that such areas require "municipal expenditures for policing and fire protection and health and sanitary inspection, far in excess of the continually dwindling taxes that can be expected from these properties."

He said the Toledo project, with the first $2,000,000 section virtually completed, was "beyond comprehension."

"The project includes an entire city set up within the city of Toledo, that would be the pride of any municipality," the mayor said. "A huge section of the city was completely rehabilitated with the construction of 22 apartment buildings, five city blocks square.

"The Metropolitan Housing authority, the local group set up to handle the financing and construction of the project, has laid out the 'last word' in modern buildings, constructed sewer and water lines and built a complete power unit to supply heat, light, and hot water to the entire community."

The buildings, Hunter said, have been divided into 264 separate family units with monthly rentals that will range from $19 to $30 per month.

Tonight's housing clinic will be held at 7:30 in the assembly rooms of the Chamber of Commerce.

C. OF C. PUSHES PARK CAMPAIGN

Past President Appeals to Council to Allot Funds For WPA Project.

A plea for the release of sufficient funds to proceed with a proposed $25,000 WPA city parks project was made before city council last night by C. H. Henkel, past president of the Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring a park beautification campaign.

Pointing out that the project would provide employment for 80 men for a period of four months, Henkel said, "you are anxious to provide employment at this time and this job would provide work for men who are desirous of work as well as cleaning up our parks that have been neglected in the past few years."

He explained that the sponsor's share of the project which amounts to $6,000 for materials could be trimmed to $4,000 by using city equipment. The government's share is figured at $19,000.

Plans for the project approved by WPA district offices and awaiting an appropriation from council before going to Washington for final approval, call for the cleaning up of the parks, building stone walks and ramps, and installing equipment to make the parks practical outdoor recreation centers.

Council President Karl P. Troll assured Henkel that the request would be given every consideration.

"If there is any possible chance of raising the necessary funds we will be only too glad to take advantage of the project," Troll said.

CHAPTER I.

The telephone bell rang, and went on ringing. Miss Agatha Hardwicke kept her instrument in the front hall where everyone could hear every single word that was said. If the postman came while you were talking, or a caller, or an errand boy, he or she was included in the audience. And if you happened to be in your bedroom five floors up, you had to run all the way down and arrive breathless.

Gay Hardwicke arrived breathless. "If it's anyone else about that bazaar, I'll smash you!" she said, and jammed the receiver against one ear. With the other she heard the kitchen door open at the foot of the basement stairway. That meant that Mrs. Hollings was listening in. She always did when Gay telephoned, and Gay didn't really mind, because Holly was an old pet and so passionately interested in her affairs. She probably wouldn't listen very long this time, because it was a female voice that said, "Miss Hardwicke—can I speak to Miss Hardwicke?"

"Miss Hardwicke is out, I'm afraid."

Why Aunt Agatha couldn't be at home to take her own calls about her own bazaar instead of having them just when one was halfway through washing one's hair! But the telephone had suddenly become eager and explanatory.

"Gay—darling—is that you? Your voice sounded all woofly——"

"So would yours if you had to run down five flights of stairs every time Aunt Agatha's League of Help thought of a new pattern for a pincushion."

"My poor angel—how grim! It's Marcia Thrale speaking."

"Yes, I got that. Where are you?"

"Well, it's too marvelous—darling, I must see you—I'm at the Luxe."

"What on earth are you doing at the Luxe?"

"Well, it's simply too marvelous. You know my Uncle George?"

"Is that the one in Java, or the one who could never keep a job in South America?"

"No, that was Denis. He's Mummy's brother—on the other side. This is the one in Java, George Thrale, and he's got pots of money, and he's my godfather, and after sending me a christening mug three years running he stopped doing anything about it till a fortnight ago, and then he sent Mummy a check for three hundred pounds and said, 'Get her all the proper clothes and let her come out with my friends the Middletons who are sailing on the fifth of February'."

"But, Marcia, that's tomorrow!"

"I know, darling. And that's positively all there was in the letter, except 'Dear Mary' at the beginning and 'Cable reply. Love, George' at the end. Gay, I must speak to you. What are you doing?"

"Well, I was trying to wash my hair. It's dripping all over the hall table at this minute."

"Darling, how grim! Jane told me you were with your Aunt Agatha—but why? The last I heard, you were going to Madeira."

"Well, I'm still here," said Gay mournfully. "Daddy and Mummy had to go because some one's started a lawsuit about Mummy's property out there. If it doesn't come out all right, there'll be frightfully little money, so when Aunt Agatha offered to have me they said 'Thank you very much, kind sister' and dumped me."

"Darling, how utterly grim."

Gay sparkled at her end of the line. Even with her black curls wet and dripping an old school dressing gown pulled hastily round her, she didn't look at all like the sort of girl who would sit down and play Cinderella while her parents basked in the sun. Aunt Agatha was a bore, and bazaars were a bore, but there were compensations.

"Oh—well—" she said.

Marcia pounced.

"What does that mean?"

"Very kind-hearted people sometimes take me out," she said.

Marcia giggled.

"Don't I know it! You're that sort, you little wretch." Then, with a sudden change of tone, "Get your hair dry and come 'round. I've got to see you."

Gay drew back an inch or two. Something said, "Don't go!" The words were so loud and distinct in her mind that she very nearly dropped the receiver. She stood there frowning at it, her gay, bright color gone as if a puff of wind had blown it out—a wind of fear—a cold, cold wind of dread.

"Gay—where are you—are you there?"

Gay said, "Yes." The wind went past her and was gone. The fear was gone. Her color came back.

"Gay—what's the matter? You sounded—funny."

Gay laughed her own gay laugh.

"I went all cold. There's a strong draught under Aunt Agatha's front door. Why do you want me to come 'round?"

Marcia giggled.

"Darling, what a thing to ask! I want to see you of course."

Gay frowned again.

"Why do you want me?" Marcia didn't, unless there was something you could do for her.

Marcia stopped giggling. She said imploringly, "Oh, Gay, do come! It's about Sylvia—she's in an awful jam."

"Sylvia's such an idiot," said Marcia Thrale with a giggle.

"She always was," said Gay. She didn't giggle, she frowned. She was remembering all the different times Sylvia had been an idiot, and got in a jam, and had to be hauled out again. And it wasn't Marcia who had done the hauling, though she was her sister; it was nearly always Gay Hardwicke. And a jam at school was one thing, but a jam after you are married and ought to be living happy ever after was quite another. Her frown deepened, and she said impatiently, "What on earth has she been doing now?"

They were in Marcia Thrale's bedroom at the Luxe. It was a riotous orgy of pink. Everything that could be pink had been painted, upholstered, or draped in that color. Mercifully, a good deal of it was obscured by the boxes, the dresses, the hats, coats, shoes, stockings, and gloves that Marcia was taking to Java. Gay had firmly made a place for herself on the edge of the rose-colored bed, Marcia in a pink satin dressing gown, having already annexed the only armchair. Marcia was like that. It ran in the family, because Sylvia was like it too—only more so. But then Sylvia was a lovely, and every one had always spoiled her. Marcia wasn't bad-looking when you saw her away from Sylvia, but nobody would ever look at her if they could look at Sylvia instead, so Marcia didn't really have the same excuse.

Gay tossed back her damp black curls and said, "What on earth is it this time?"

Marcia spoke comfortably from the chair.

"Well, you know what Sylvia is. She never writes—at least only postcards to Mummy, because if she didn't do that, she'd have Mummy ringing up every other day to know if she was dead."

"Yes," said Gay. "You couldn't hurry Marcia, but you could try.

"I don't think I've had a single letter from her since she was married, and that's just one a year ago. And I've only seen her at home, when she rushed down for about half an hour, and of course Mummy was there the whole time. But I lunched with her yesterday — to say good-bye, you know—and she told me she was in this awful jam. She really did look pretty ghastly. I mean she'd got on the wrong stockings for her dress, and her lipstick all crooked, so I think things are pretty grim."

"What is it?" said Gay, in a resigned tone.

Marcia waved a newly manicured hand.

"Darling, she never told me. We only had about ten minutes after lunch, and the moment she began I said quite firmly, 'Well, my dear, it's no good your asking me to do anything, because I'm absolutely up to my eyes and sailing day after tomorrow.' And she was just beginning to go all orphan-of-the-storm, when Francis came in, and she dried right up and got rid of me as soon as she possibly could—I can't think why. I wouldn't have married Francis if he'd been fifty times as rich, but we've always got on all right."

Gay laughed. "Considering Sylvia had known him only for six weeks before they got married and you were away for quite half that time—"

* * *

Marcia giggled. "It didn't give me a chance, did it? But I really wouldn't have married him even if Sylvia hadn't got off with him first."

"Well, I've seen him only twice. He seemed all right. Isn't he being nice to Sylvia?"

"Oh, I don't think it's that," said Marcia. She got up, stretched herself, and gathered the pink dressing gown round her. "Darling, I've got one last fitting. Such a bore! It's pink crepe. Mercifully, I tried it on when it came at lunch time, and the hem is crooked. I told Madame Frederica exactly what I thought about it on the telephone, and she fairly crawled, so she's sending a girl to do it here, and Mrs. Middleton says I can use her room, because it's got a much better glass than this." She got as far as the door, yawned, and said over her shoulder, "So you can see Sylvia here."

Gay leaped from the rose-colored eiderdown, caught Marcia by a pink satin shoulder, and shook it vigorously.

"Sylvia? My good girl, what are you talking about?"

Marcia's rather light blue eyes opened widely.

"Darling, didn't I tell you? She's coming here on purpose to see you. That's why I wanted you to come."

"Sylvia's coming here to see me?"

"Yes, darling. Didn't I tell you?"

Gay stamped an angry foot.

"You know very well you didn't! It's a plant! You're wriggling out and landing me with Sylvia exactly as you always did at school!"

Marcia giggled faintly. "Darling, somebody's got to help her, and I'm going to Java."

Gay let go of the pink shoulder and stood back. "When is she coming?"

Marcia looked at a new wrist watch.

"Well, she's due now, but she's always late."

"Why is she coming here? If she wants to see me why can't she come and see me? Why drag me here?"

"Really, darling—drag! And we had to get you here because of Francis! You see, even Francis couldn't think there was anything odd about Sylvia's coming to say good-bye to me before I go to Java. At least, I think he might if he knew her as well as we do, but I don't suppose he does—not about things like that. Now look here, she really does rely on you to help her, because when I was coming away yesterday she simply gripped my hand and said, 'Where's Gay? I must see her. Do let me know where she is.' And she couldn't say any more than that, because Francis was there, but she pinched my hand till I very nearly screamed, so I thought I'd better find you and let her know. And the minute she heard you were coming, she said she'd dash round in a taxi—and I expect that's Sylvia now."

The telephone bell rang. Marcia took up the receiver.

"Lady Colesborough? . . . Oh, yes, I'm expecting her. Please send her up." She turned to see Gay reaching for her hat.

"You can see Sylvia yourself, Marcia."

Marcia's color rose. "Darling, you can't go—you can't! She's come here on purpose to see you. You can't!"

"Watch me!" said Gay. She snapped out the words, shut down her lips in a determined scarlet line, and pulled up the collar of her dark grey coat.

"Oh, Gay!"

Something in Gay said, "Run for it!" and she ran. But before she had taken a dozen steps along the corridor she was pulled up short. Sylvia Colesborough was coming towards her—Sylvia pale and lovely, with her golden hair under a little grey cap, and a pale grey squirrel coat falling open over a dress of pale grey wood. She said, "Oh, Gay!" in her lovely helpless voice, and Gay knew that it was too late to run away. Whatever Sylvia Colesborough's trouble was, it was going to be Gay Hardwicke's trouble from now onwards.

She went back into Marcia's room with Sylvia, and found it empty. A little bright flame of rage flickered up in Gay. It burned in her cheeks and set a dancing spark in her eyes. She looked at Sylvia in the pink brocade chair and said:

"What on earth have you been up to?"

Sylvia Colesborough was taking off her grey suede gloves, frowning a little because the third left-hand finger had caught itself on the big diamond in her engagement ring. It was a very big diamond, a single stone surrounded by fine brilliants. The gloves were very expensive gloves. Sylvia laid them in her lap and folded her hands upon them. She was wearing a pale rose lipstick and nail-polish, and green eye-shadow, but she had the sense to leave her eyelashes alone. Nature had painted them a full six tones deeper than her flax-gold hair, and lavishly generous, had tipped the curling ends with gold. It was these lashes and the almost midnight blue of the eyes they screened which gave to Sylvia's beauty a certain exquisite strangeness.

She lifted those lovely eyes and said, "Oh, Gay!"

Gay tapped her foot. "That gets us a lot farther, doesn't it!" she said.

"But, Gay darling, Marcia said—"

"Marcia would! She always did fob you off on to me when she got half a chance!"

A sweet, fleeting smile touched Sylvia's lips.

"Darling, you were so clever. You always got me out of things. I've always said you're the cleverest person I know. You will help me, won't you?"

Gay leaned against the ornamental rail at the foot of the bed. "Now, look here, Sylvia, why should I help you? We were at school together, I was your bridesmaid, and you're some sort of fifteenth cousin. You've never written me a line since you got married, you've never been near me since I came to London, and I've never been inside your house—"

"Oh, but I didn't know——"

"Oh, yes, you did, because I wrote and told you—I told you Mummy and Daddy were going to Madeira and marooning me with Aunt Agatha. And did you rally round? Not a rally! Did you take the trouble to lift the receiver from that mother-of-pearl telephone thing you had for one of your wedding presents and coo into it, 'Darling, do come around and see me?' You know you didn't. Sylvia, if you look at me like that, I'll throw something at you—I really will!"

Rail Lines Seeking Own Solution to Revenue Problem

LABOR JOINS OFFICIALS TO MAP PROGRAM

Report to Be Submitted to Roosevelt Next Week; Pay Reductions Out.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Railway labor and management, dissatisfied with the recommendations of President Roosevelt's special railway committee, are seeking their own solution to the critical problems confronting the industry, it was learned today.

Rail executives and the labor groups have appointed a subcommittee to draft a program which will not include wage reductions. It was understood that they will submit it to Mr. Roosevelt when he returns to Washington next week.

Report Held Secret.

Details of the report to Mr. Roosevelt, prepared by Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman Walter M. W. Splawn and Commissioners Joseph V. Eastman and Charles D. Mahaffie, have not been made public but copies were given to persons who attended the president's general railway conference.

In informed quarters, it was said that neither labor nor management is satisfied that the recommendations made will solve the railroad's financial problems.

Union leaders, it was learned, reiterated their opposition to wage reductions proposed by the executives and warned that a bitter labor struggle would not make the critical problems any easier to solve.

The two groups could not agree on a federal unemployment insurance program for the nearly 1,000,000 railway workers. A bill sponsored by the unions will be introduced in congress today by Sens. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., and Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y.

Frown On Proposal.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said his directors could not agree to support the measure. He said that they feared the possibility of both state and federal unemployment systems with duplicate taxation.

The bill, it was understood, would tax carriers three per cent on pay rolls up to $300 a month for each employe and would be administered by the railroad retirement board.

2 Ashland Acts, Mansfielder Win In Talent Quest

Two Ashland acts were first and second winners in the talent quest last night at the Ohio theater, with a third award going to a Mansfield girl.

The contest was the last elimination before the final contest next Thursday, in which the seven winners of the three elimination contests will compete.

John Lutsch, Ashland baritone, singing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" won first place, and a trio of Ashland girls, Lois Lowe, Lucille Yeader and Betty Batterson, were second with their "Roll Along Silvery Moon."

Third place went to Edna Wadell, Mansfield, for her singing of "It's Wonderful." This is the first time that a third award has been made, and was given because the trio and Miss Wadell were practically tied, judges announced. Winners are chosen by applause of the audience.

The winner for this district will be chosen next Thursday and on the following Thursday, April 14, a troupe comprised of winners from six Ohio theaters, will appear at the Ohio theater.

Cold Slows Flooding Ohio Valley Streams

Up and Down THE STREET

Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, left today for a two week vacation — last year's, not this — on Mobile Bay, Ala. He's not going because the place is celebrated in song, but because his father and mother live there. His father is H. D. Williams, teacher of psychology at the Fair Hope School of Organic Education, one of the experimental schools in which a child is taught through its natural inclinations rather than a formal curriculum. Mrs. Williams will accompany him and they'll stop at Oxford to pick up their daughter, Jane, who is a student at Miami.

A strange coincidence in the murder of Sherman Reed, Wednesday, is that exactly 20 years ago to the day, March 30, 1918, a woman was murdered in exactly the same manner. Mrs. Altie Graves, living on West Sixth street, was found dead from a blow from a piece of gas pipe. There was no apparent reason and no clues, except the death weapon.

Mrs. Louise Bricker Coons of Shiloh, former Mansfield woman, has had a song published and is looking for "pluggers" for it. The song — "The Little Shack We Shared With Mother"—was recently played on a broadcast program, and the composer and author hopes to find orchestras to play it. It isn't the first song she has written, but it's the first she has had published.

An ambitious apricot tree on the Walter Shoup farm, R. F. D. 2, burst into full bloom this week, and presented a pretty spring-is-here, tra-la-la picture with its covering of lovely pink blooms. A branch of it was placed on display in The News-Journal window, but the sun soon withered it.

A number of Mansfield husbands are going to be "treated" to chocolate candy today by their wives, according to a candy maker who specializes in the April Fool brand. While it has been sold to various groups, the majority of this year's output was taken up by wives with wicked gleams in their eyes. The candy looks delicious, but those chocolate chips are actually chips, while those big pieces that look like coated nuts are—but maybe you'll have a chance to find out for yourself what's inside 'em.

CHRYSLER, UAW AGREE ON PACT

Union Retracts Demand For No Pay Cuts, Paves Way For New Year's Contract.

(By United Press)

DETROIT, Mich.—A new one-year agreement with the Chrysler corporation today gave the United Automobile Workers their first renewal of contracts obtained during sit-down strikes in the automobile industry a year ago.

The Chrysler renewal was signed last night, two hours before the old contract expired. There had been reports of an impending strike all day, although union leaders denied them, and Chrysler officials had announced that they were ready to meet any walkout in the Plymouth plant by closing it.

The new agreement provided a one-year extension of the existing contract, which gives the U. A. W. the right to bargain only for its mmebers and provides seniority rights and a committee system.

The threat to negotiations had been the union's demands for two new concessions: (1) An agreement that there would be no wage cuts; (2) that the U. A. W. would be relieved of its pledge not to strike.

The union abandoned the two demands as the deadline approached.

It was rumored that John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization, entered the negotiations by long distance telephone from Washington.

PEACE WITH DICTATORS VITAL TO PREVENT WAR, HOOVER SAYS

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Former President Herbert Hoover warned the nation last night that if it would stay out of war it "must keep the peace with dictatorships as well as with popular governments."

Mr. Hoover, addressing the council on foreign relations after a tour abroad, deplored the rise of Fascism in Europe, but asserted that "the forms of government which other peoples pass through in working out their destinies is not our business."

"You will recollect we were once animated by a desire to save the world for democracy," he said. "The only result that time was to sow dragons' teeth which sprang up into dictatorships.

"We can never herd the world into the paths of righteousness with the dogs of war."

He denounced proposals that democracies unite to enforce peace.

Mr. Hoover visited 14 European nations, found 370,000,000 persons ruled by dictatorships who once lived under democracy, and encountered forces which he said threatened civilization, this country's as well as Europe's.

These forces he listed as the rise of dictatorships, the international "race to arms," increased governmental debts carrying the threat of inflation, the struggle of all nations toward economic self-sufficiency, universal fear, and an increase in brutality, terrorism and disregard for life and justice.

On the other hand, he said, Europe has gone farther toward recovery from depression than this country has, and despite war scares is not prepared for war.

"I do not believe a general war is in immediate prospect," he said. "As long as there is peace, there is hope."

DIES AT AGE 39

Mrs. Henrietta Harris Lived In City All Her Life.

Mrs. Henrietta P. Harris, 39, of the Olivesburg road, died in the General hospital last night following a brief illness.

A lifelong resident of Mansfield, Mrs. Harris was born Nov. 11, 1898, and was the wife of Willis Harris, poultry superintendent of the Ohio State reformatory. She was a member of the St. John's Evangelical church.

Surviving besides her husband are a daughter, Marilyn Jean; her mother, Mrs. Susan Schafer, and two sisters, Mrs. Paul Ritchie and Miss Bertha Schafer, all of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday with Rev. Paul Saleste of the St. John's Evangelical church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

INDIANA FACES THREAT, RIVERS RISE RAPIDLY

Seven Inches of Rain Causes Ohio to Advance Close to Flood Stage at Paducah.

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Generally fair and colder weather throughout the Ohio valley gave promise today of a slower rate of rise in major streams, which were near flood stage at a few points.

While the high water, caused by heavy rains the past few days, was at some cities the most serious so far this year, it held little apparent danger. Around Paducah, Ky., more than seven inches of rainfall brought the Ohio river close to flood stage.

U. S. Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux predicted a 46 or 47-foot stage at Cairo by Monday. A floodwall protects the city to 60 feet.

Lowlands Flooded.

J. L. Kendall, meteorologist at Louisville, said that no major flood need be feared, even though lowlands below there would be covered. The rain, he explained, came while the Ohio was falling.

At Indianapolis Meteorologist J. H. Armington reported the Wabash and White rivers rose one to two feet yesterday and predicted flood conditions throughout the southwest portion of Indiana.

"The flood conditions will not be acute," he said, "but they will be worse than at any time this year."

Devereaux reported the Ohio rising from Wheeling, W. Va., to Gallipolis, O., stationary from Huntington, W. Va., to Maysville, Ky., and rising from there to the mouth. He predicted it would continue to rise today from the mouth of the Kanawha at Point Pleasant, W. Va., to the mouth of the Kentucky at Carrollton, Ky.

The Little and Great Miami rivers were rising and flooding a few camps and secondary roads in extreme lowlands. The Ohio here was rising from around 33 feet. Flood stage is 52.

CUB EVENTS SET

Dinner and Field Day Planned For Younger Boys.

Dates of two annual events for youths registered in the Cub movement, the Boy Scout program for younger boys, were announced today by Floyd Dent, area scout executive.

The events are the parents and Cub dinner to be held April 29 at the Central Methodist church, and the annual Cub field day scheduled to be held April 23.

In the field day event, boys from the city's two Cub packs will compete in kite flying and other activities. About 50 kites are expected to be entered in the kite contest. Prizes will be given for workmanship, flying qualities, and skill in handling.

WATCH THAT SUN!

Too Much Suntan Might Cause Cancer, Researchers Say.

BALTIMORE — (AP) — If you want to avoid cancer of the skin don't try to get too good a suntan this summer — and this is no April fool joke.

Dr. Arthur Knudson and Dr. W. Ray Bryan of the Albany Medical college told members of the Federated Biological societies today that too much sun bathing or nudism can be an important contributing cause of skin cancer.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Amusing, of course, is the revelation that much of the personal fortune of Richard Whitney, the former president of the New York Stock Exchange, was invested in economic dingbats rather than conservative, blue-chip issues. But some restaurateurs go next door to eat, many saloon keepers are teetotalers and Barbara Hutton wears very little jewelry from the counters of the Five-and-Ten.

Mr. Whitney's properties included an applejack firm, a dirt mine whose product was calculated to invigorate tired land and a bug juice inimical to insect pests. These be queer interests indeed for a man in his position, and Mr. Whitney may feel embarrassed by the disclosure of his foibles in the inventory of his old golf sticks, collar buttons and initialed belt buckles.

Great men do have their whims, however.

The infallible fire extinguisher which Tex Rickard bought from an inventor was his favorite investment. It consisted of a powder inclosed in a glass grenade or egg, and the theory was that hundreds of grenades tossed through the windows of a burning building would shatter and smother the flames under a sifting of the magic chemicals. Unfortunately, however, in practical tests the glass eggs plopped in the blazing crates which Mr. Rickard had ignited for his demonstration and did not break up to the time of his death.

Rickard was pondering on designs similar to the salt shaker and talcum powder sifter. He was sensitive about his patent fire extinguisher and defended it doggedly against the scoffing jests of Gene Fowler, who was his press agent at the time but lacked the true reverential spirit of the press agent toward his employer.

Rickard was the associate of many rich and socially refined Wall Street operators, included among his memorable 600 millionaires, and he always insisted that if a poor man rubbed elbows with millionaires long enough he would rub off some of the rich onto himself. Yet he was only a little brother of the rich when he died, and he had had to endure much from Fowler, not only with regard to his magic powder but also concerning his interest in acoustics.

Somehow around Madison Square Garden about that time there developed a strange interest in acoustics, and a number of fight managers and boxing writers talked loftily of their investment in a company which manufactured them. Rickard urged Fowler to get aboard for the future security of Agnes, his wife, and Jane, their young daughter.

Fowler floored him, however, with the remark that acoustics were nothing but echoes and that he doubtless had been swindled by some clever scoundrel not above imposing on his unlearnedness.

There may be some in this country who will jeer at President Roosevelt's economic knowledge, but among New Dealers he is held to possess the sum of all wisdom on such matters. Yet it was not many years ago that Mr. Roosevelt, as a private financier, was promoting a company to trade in German marks, a company to produce a glorified tintype or snapshot gallery for the sidewalk trade and a company which was going to conduct vast retail business entirely by slot machines, thus eliminating incalculable numbers of store clerks.

That was before technological unemployment became a political and economic issue in the country, and it is Mr. Roosevelt's good fortune that the plan did not succeed. Mr. Roosevelt's customers foiled the plan and saved him from blame for technological unemployment by using home-made money in the slot machines, so the jobs of the clerks were saved.

Henry Morgenthau, an economic genius surely, was a colleague of Mr. Roosevelt in those venturesome days, and in view of their interest in dingbats, Mr. Whitney's investments in the applejack company, the dirt mine and the bug juice may be said to have the most eminent precedent.

Indeed, the blue chip often is a bad investment. American Telephone and Telegraph was selling around 180 a year or so ago, a blue chip if there ever was one. It closed at 115 recently.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's all very well to jest about Hollywood's taking love lightly, but you couldn't prove it on a Frank Borzage set.

In Borzage love scenes the tender passion has the accent on the adjective. The hackneyed clinch is a matter of ecstasy with decided spiritual overtones. The business runs briefly on the screen, and then the characters go about other deeds of the story.

But on the set a love scene is a fair part of a day's work.

Borzage the other day had Robert Taylor and Margaret Sullavan rehearsing one of those passionate tendernesses. The scene was in their little attic apartment, unpretentious, old-fashioned but picturesque. In the story—"Three Comrades"—this is the honeymoon apartment of the boy and girl, now married a week and about to be parted because the girl has to have an operation. She's kept that a secret from the boy.

Taylor is sitting on the side of the bed. Miss Sullavan, in a peasant costume, is lying across it, facing the camera which gets Taylor's profile.

"We'll try it once," says Borzage, quietly. He is always quiet.

"I've had this week—they can't ever take it away from me," whispers Margaret, and Taylor takes her in his arms.

The cameraman and Borzage squat on the floor, the lensman peering up at the actors through a "finder." This is going to be an upward shot.

"This angle all right?" asks Borzage.

The cameraman makes a suggestion.

"A little closer, please," Borzage asks Margaret.

She squirms over, making a wry face.

"My dress is coming apart," she says, pulling the apart pieces together. "I've had this week—they can't ever . . ." etc.

In going into the clinch she puts her head on Taylor's right shoulder, hastily withdraws it and switches to the other side, laughing. Taylor laughs, too. The mistake would have put the Sullavan face to the camera, hidden the Taylor profile.

More camera-angling. Could Miss Sullavan move her feet over? She moves her feet. Could Mr. Taylor lean a little more forward? He leans. Could Miss Sullavan, in the clinch, move her face around just a little bit more to the camera? (But what movie actor couldn't!)

Between clinches, Miss Sullavan and Mr. Taylor chat and laugh. No, not about love. About horses, may be, or babies—Miss Sullavan's—or what they're going to have for lunch. Maybe they're promising each other to refrain from onions at lunch, in consideration of an afternoon of love awaiting.

Before lunch is called Miss Sullavan has had seven weeks that they can't take away from her, and the innocent bystander surmises that her neck must be sore from rubbing on Taylor's broad shoulder.

The last item in this prelude to love is exceedingly practical. Since the camera is shooting upward, they'll need a ceiling on the apartment. So Miss Sullavan has another week they can't take, etc., while the "finder" decides just how much ceiling will be needed.

One of the nice things about being a movie director (and having a yacht) is that you can make a round-the-world trip pay for itself. Tay Garnett's making a movie of his.

Summer is coming, and fashion knows it and is displaying pretty little frocks to be worn when the flowers bloom again. The one pictured is one of them. A little color contrast is introduced in the interesting neckline and the belt.

GARDEN SHADES

Sun umbrellas were shown in many shapes at the recent furniture showing held in Chicago. The most unusual was a double decker "air conditioned" type which made use of buggy fringe as decoration. There was the Haile Selassie umbrella, the French merry-go-round, carnival, circus type, and square umbrellas used unique and often amusing decorations.

TIMELY TOPICS CLUB HAS GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Ambrose Middleton Presents Paper on "The Magic of the Potter's Wheel"; Final Meeting Will Be Dinner at Club.

AT THE MEETING yesterday of the Timely Topics club at the Women's Club Mrs. Julius Weber was hostess to 20 members and guests. Mrs. Ambrose Middleton was guest speaker. Her subject was "The Magic of the Potter's Wheel."

Telling that the art of pottery making was one of the oldest, Mrs. Middleton clarified the difference between pottery and china by explaining that the former is opaque while the latter is translucent. China was the first country to discover the potter's art, but the whole world learned the technique and it is common to every part of the world.

The reason for the fineness of the Spode ware, Mrs. Middleton explained, is that its clay is mixed with bone ash. Ohio, she also pointed out, is the center of the pottery industry in this country. The talk was illustrated with examples of both pottery and china.

The final meeting of the year will be a dinner April 21 at the Women's Club with the executive committee as hostesses. Officers include Miss Justine Sterkel, Mrs. A. H. Lewis and Mrs. May Perl. This will be a business meeting and election of officers for the coming year.

Have Plenty Yet Wife Acts Jumpy

"DEAR MISS LEE: From the time I was 16, an orphan, I worked very hard and saved money, made good investments until I got married at 36. We went into business which gives us a very good income. I give my wife all the money to bank and she writes the checks for expenses. Sometimes I keep a couple of dollars for incidental expenses. On account of this we have one quarrel after another. However, the bank book does not correspond with the money she takes to the bank. There is a shortage of from $150 to $200, and when I say anything about it, she goes into a rage and will not give any explanation. I thought that she deposited the money in another bank so she would have a little account of her own, but why should she do this? I don't keep any secrets from her.

"I threatened to leave her several times in the past year. However, I love my wife too much to separate. My wife is a good woman. However, I cannot understand this shortage. We have two children. Both are married and have good positions I was of the opinion that my wife gave them the money, but now I am sure that is not the case.

No Longer Affectionate.

"My wife was very affectionate until about two years ago. All at once she became cold, hard to please and with customers she is very indifferent and sometimes abusive. I talked about this to our family physician and he had a long talk with her. He stated that she probably needs a rest, so I suggested we turn the business over to our trusty employe who has been working for us for 15 years, a very capable man. The mere suggestion put just more fat on the already hot fire. I think I have done everything humanly possible to reason with her without result. Have you any suggestion?

"WORRIED."

"P. S. We have our own home (seven rooms). I employ a gardener and she has an old lady to cook and keep house clean. We have nice new car and she can use it any time. I want to go out week-ends and enjoy a little bit with her, but she is brooding about something and will not tell me."

I am puzzled, Worried, and think guesswork in such a case is pretty dangerous business. Your physician did not tell you what your wife told him, I presume. The tendency to quarrel and scold may be nothing more than nerves. If she is worrying about something secretly, it would tend to make her nervous and "jumpy."

Have you thought that she might have some disease which she thinks may be fatal to her? It may be imaginary, but if she hasn't told your family physician, it may be distressing her just as much as if it was real. People who think they have cancer, for instance, are quite apt to worry about it in secret, when, if they would consult a doctor their fears would be allayed, or they could take treatments which would help.

If she feels she may need an operation she might put money away to meet the expense. Of course I know that would be unnecessary as you would take care of it, but in her worried state she may not see the matter in that light. There is no use questioning her about it, anyhow. Keep track of the shortage but say nothing When she objects to the modest amounts you keep for personal use say nothing—just let her talk You certainly are entitled to them.

Sometimes women in late middle life grow dissatisfied with their lives and think they are unhappy Very often a shock of some kind makes them realize how blessed they are. More often they don't need a shock, health improves, life looks more rosy and they are all right again.

I would suggest continued patience on your part. Try gently to get her to take some outdoor recreation, driving in the country, walks if possible, and see if time and your love and trust in her won't bring her out of it. Maybe the children could suggest something, as they are as interested in her welfare, almost as you are. What did she say when you threatened to leave her?

Vivacious Bolero Marks Easy to Make Frock for Spring.

By MARIAN MARTIN

Here's a perfect example of the new simplicity which lends such charm to so many of the season's smartest frocks. And from the dressmaking angle there's practically nothing to making this youthful frock and its pert bolero jacket, for Pattern 9672 is so easy to use. Choose a fresh-looking fabric and see how attractively either a sheer silk or synthetic will lend itself to the flared lines of the skirt and to the cool, little sleeves. Or choose solid color and contrast the bolero. The neck may be finished in a V and trimmed w a flower if you prefer. Complete Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart is included.

Pattern 9672 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards 39 inch fabric; 1⅛ yards for bolero.

BE SURE TO STATE SIZE

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Write for Marian Martin's new book of spring patterns. Better hurry, for you'll want a new printed frock to slip into on these first balmy days. This book is full of gay designs that will give you a lot of bright wardrobe ideas ...for mornings, afternoons and parties. Cunning clothes for little girls, too. Many of these styles are designed to carry you straight through the summer...and all of them are patterned for easy making at home. Price of book 15 cents.

Cultivate Lovely Speech

By JULIET SHELBY

THE OTHER night this department had the honor of doing the town with a lot of distinguished visiting foreigners. We sat there grinning like the cat that ate the canary while they discoursed on the glories of American womanhood. According to them we of the Land of Liberty are the most beautiful, the best dressed and entirely the most delectable of our sex—until we open our mouths That fast one cut down on our smirking and burned us up. Especially so, because we've a horrid suspicion that they have got a little bit on their side.

So here's for sounding as good as we look! One of Hollywood's voice instructors says that a beautiful voice is a combination of tonal quality and clearness. This can be learned by practice, as many a movie star will acknowledge.

Apparently the trick to getting the right tone goes back to breathing properly. Breathe deeply and from the diaphragm, and breathe out more than in, when talking. Remember to practice speaking against the frontal bones. You will feel a vibration in the front of your oral cavity and in your cheeks and frontal sinuses.

After you have gotten your tone organized, the next thing to do is to go to town on learning to speak clearly. The telephone company has some simple exercises that they give the girls who are studying to be operators. And they really will turn the trick.

Here is an exercise for the lips: Extend them forward in open circular form; then let them relax and return to normal Repeat several times Starting with lips closed, puff them apart with the breath, as for the sound of "p" in the word "part," and repeat this rapidly Repeat, adding the various vowel sounds, in order, as "pah", "pay," etc. Again repeat, substituting the "b" sound as, "bah," etc.

Tongue Exercise.

The tongue exercise is: With mouth well open curve tip of tongue upward to touch gums just back of front teeth, and return to normal. Repeat several times, gradually speeding up Repeat, sounding "lah" each time tongue is lowered. Again repeat, successively using the sounds "tah," "nah" and "dah."

The last is a jaw exercise: Drop the jaw, with muscles relaxed, far enough to permit inserting the thumb sidewise between the teeth. Return to closed position, and repeat several times. Repeat, sounding the syllable "mah" each time the jaw is dropped. Repeat, using the sounds "maw" and "moh." Avoid any forcing down or stiffening of the jaw. It should drop loosely.

Of course lovely speech can't be cultivated in a day, but it can be done, and it packs a world of appeal into each word. Armed with a vibrant, alluring voice you've got the drop on the beautiful sirens who slink but squeak.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"It would better be," I said, smiling, when Mary said that "from now on, discretion would be her middle name."

"In fact," I went on, "suppose for the rest of our day and evening we act as if this man didn't exist. We'll note, of course, everything he does, but we won't make a single comment upon him until we're safely back in the hotel with the doors locked."

"That's the ticket," she agreed, "and I'm signing it. I move an amendment, too, that we don't let the—word of five letters beginning with 'I' bother us any more. We started out to have ourselves a time. Don't let this bird spoil it for us. What do you say?"

"I say 'yes'," I answered, trying to make my voice cheery, but feeling exactly the opposite emotion. I was resolved, however, that Mary should not recognize my dolor. But I succeeded so indifferently that when Mary announced it was time to think of dinner, she accompanied the remark with an emphatic, "and you certainly deserve a good feed You've shown a lot of bravery under fire."

"What do you mean?" I countered, startled, but she only smiled at me.

Madge Complimented.

"You know very well," she said, "only we resolved we wouldn't talk about it. You've been a brick to go through with this window shopping business when I know that you really didn't care a hoot in the hot place about it, and only toddled along to please me, same as you'd take a kid to the circus."

From somewhere I pumped up a quizzical smile.

"You know the old proverb, Dear, about it taking seven adults to escort one youngster to the circus. Really, I did enjoy the window shopping, even if you do insist upon my acting the role of a martyr over it."

"Martyr or no martyr, you're the world's best scout," she said. "That's my story, and I'm sticking to it. Now how about it? Are you game for a real French dinner at that ducky place over toward the East river?"

Agrees to Go.

I am exceedingly fond of French cooking, but I do not care for it so much in the summer. The dishes are far too heavy for hot weather consumption. But the day had been unusually cool, even for late summer, and I suddenly realized that I was hungry in spite of the fact that everywhere we had gone we had been conscious sooner or later of the presence of the man spying upon us. He had tried to conceal his presence, and was evidently banking upon his belief that we did not know of his existence.

"It's cool enough, Mary, for escargots and Coquille St. Jacques," I told her, smiling, for I know that her preference in French dishes coincides with my own.

"And crepes suzettes," she supplemented with an eager gamin grin. "Come on! let's go!"

We took another taxi, and I know that Mary was estimating the detective's taxi bill with grim amusement. For we knew that he was following us, and were not surprised to see him enter the restaurant a few minutes behind us and take a table at the other end of the room. It was one unobtrusively located, which he, no doubt, hoped we would not notice from our booth—for Mary had insisted upon taking one of the semi-enclosed tables.

"It's so much more comfy this way," she said, "almost like a private dining room. See! We're at an angle here. We can't possibly see or be seen by the other 'boothers,' although we can hear —and be heard."

The last part of her sentence was forcibly brought home to us a few minutes later when we heard the noise of someone entering the angled booth next to ours and heard a woman's voice saying:

"You think you can get away with this, Dicky-bird, but I'm here to tell you that you can't."

It was the voice of the drunken woman who had called my husband at our hotel suite!

If you have left-over chicken, beef, or ham, chop, season well, spread on three-inch squares of pastry. Moisten with a little gravy or milk, roll up like a jelly roll, pressing the ends together tightly, bake in a quick oven and serve hot for luncheon.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 2.

A day of surprises and sudden undertakings is revealed by the planetary operations. There may be unexpected developments causing a change of residence, interests or an unforeseen journey. An element of secrecy or collusion seems at the bottom of this. It would be advisable to be influenced by elders, who have the best welfare at heart, but be wary as to deceit or treacheries from doubtful associates. Go slow on secret agreements.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for the advent of sudden and surprising developments in the affairs. These may call for unplanned change, travel, new interests and associations. Confer with elders when making decisions and be alert to schemes, pitfalls and secret agreements with others.

A child born on this day may have a sound mind and good judgment but may be disposed to accomplish matters by easy methods, intrigue and secret understandings, rather than open standards of ethics.

Don't overlook the fact that your pea vines need something to climb on when they are small. If you have some good tall brush, cut off the tops and place them on the ground close to the rows. Medium tall peas can be supported by brush laid on the ground, but for the very tall varieties you will need to have the brush set in the earth.

Grape juice sauce blends well with baked, spiced or cottage puddings.

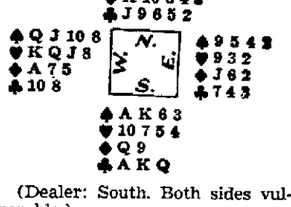
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PLACING THE HONORS

A DOUBLE or other strong action during the bidding can enable the declarer to place the high honors with one particular defender. In planning his play, it usually will pay to count the other defender for any low honors that may prove important, as few completely honorless hands are dealt.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South's original bid here was 1-Spade, which West doubled. North called 2-Diamonds, East passed, South went to 2-No Trumps, North 3-Clubs and South 3-No Trumps.

The heart K was led against this contract and the A in dummy won the trick. Three rounds of clubs were now taken, and with the heart A gone from the dummy, South's problem was how to enter dummy to cash the set-up clubs.

Reading West for the diamond A, in view of his double, but being uncertain as to where the J might be, the declarer played the diamond Q, and when West failed to cover, went right up with the K. This play enabled him to make his contract.

West would not have gained anything by going in with the A, for in that event, he could have cashed only that trick and three hearts.

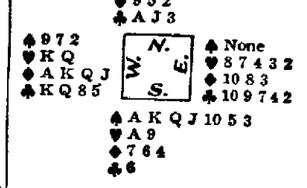
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

After two passes, South bid 4-Spades. What should West do?

THEATER

Little Theater Road.

Michael Whalen, currently playing in "Walking Down Broadway" at the Ohio theater, entered films by the same way as many before him—through the Little Theaters of Southern California. Whalen was playing in Eve Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory theater in New York City when he decided that he wanted to crash Hollywood. But instead of going to the casting bureau, he went to one of the Little Theaters and waited for the talent scout to find him. Now he is one of the busiest young actors in the film city. His current picture is a story woven around six beautiful chorus girls who sign an agreement one New Year's Eve to meet again in a year. Claire Trevor, Dixie Dunbar, Lynn Bari, Jayne Regan, Leah Ray and Phyllis Brooks are the girls.

Fighter Turns Actor.

Maxie Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight champion, would rather have been a baseball player than a fighter, so he became a movie player. Maxie, who isn't noted for his beauty, is in demand as a screen comedian, although he has a restaurant in Hollywood which takes a part of his time. The big "pug" is one of the fighters in "Mr. Moto's Gamble," now being shown at the Madison Peter Lorre, who has distinguished himself in character roles, brings the famous Saturday Evening Post international detective, Mr. Moto, to the screen. This is his third picture in the Moto series and revolves around an arena murder committed before 20,000 unsuspecting fight fans.

Singing Star.

Jack Randall, singing Western star, introduces five new songs in his latest picture, "Where The West Begins," which the Majestic is showing today and tomorrow, among them "Born To The Range," "Down The Trail of Dreams," and "Sleep Little Cowboy." Randall is seen as the cowboy who plays Robin Hood to a stricken community in order to save it from a band of racketeers. The second film is lovely Madeliene Carroll in "I Was A Spy," an English made picture, which tells the pictured autobiography of a woman spy during the World war. Herbert Marshall plays opposite her as the English officer.

Western Thriller.

It's a stage coach robbery and murder on the range which cause the exciting complications in Bob Steele's new Western thriller, "Ridin' The Lone Trail," which opens today at the Ritz. Bob takes the role of a sheriff who hires himself out as a cowboy on a ranch which he knows is a hot bed of intrigue, and to discover the identity of the "Masked Rider." Anna May Wong in "Daughter of Shanghai" is the second attraction for the two days. She plays a Chinese girl who is determined to avenge her father's death at the hands of alien smugglers.

Multi-colored paper eggs were presented to each of the 36 guests and during the course of the evening the egg bearing the announcement was given to each guest.

During the evening bridge and bunco were played with Mrs. R. E. Boock and Mrs. Paul Shafer winning the bridge prizes while bunco prizes were won by the Misses Genevieve Howell, Lillian Sandel and Nora Cesario. A three-course luncheon was served at the small tables with a color scheme of orchid and yellow.

The gifts, which were given Miss Proto, were arranged in a large basket trimmed in the same color scheme. The two hostesses gave the bride-to-be a set of china.

A little color contrast is introduced in the interesting neckline and the belt.

TIMELY TOPICS CLUB HAS GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Ambrose Middleton Presents Paper on "The Magic of the Potter's Wheel"; Final Meeting Will Be Dinner at Club.

AT THE MEETING yesterday of the Timely Topics club at the Women's Club Mrs. Julius Weber was hostess to 20 members and guests. Mrs. Ambrose Middleton was guest speaker. Her subject was "The Magic of the Potter's Wheel."

Telling that the art of pottery making was one of the oldest, Mrs. Middleton clarified the difference between pottery and china by explaining that the former is opaque while the latter is translucent. China was the first country to discover the potter's art, but the whole world learned the technique and it is common to every part of the world.

The reason for the fineness of the Spode ware, Mrs. Middleton explained, is that its clay is mixed with bone ash. Ohio, she also pointed out, is the center of the pottery industry in this country. The talk was illustrated with examples of both pottery and china.

The final meeting of the year will be a dinner April 21 at the Women's Club with the executive committee as hostesses. Officers include Miss Justine Sterkel, Mrs. A. H. Lewis and Mrs. May Perl. This will be a business meeting and election of officers for the coming year.

Have Plenty Yet Wife Acts Jumpy

"DEAR MISS LEE: From the time I was 16, an orphan, I worked very hard and saved money, made good investments until I got married at 36. We went into business which gives us a very good income. I give my wife all the money to bank and she writes the checks for expenses. Sometimes I keep a couple of dollars for incidental expenses. On account of this we have one quarrel after another. However, the bank book does not correspond with the money she takes to the bank. There is a shortage of from $150 to $200, and when I say anything about it, she goes into a rage and will not give any explanation. I thought that she deposited the money in another bank so she would have a little account of her own, but why should she do this? I don't keep any secrets from her.

"I threatened to leave her several times in the past year. However, I love my wife too much to separate. My wife is a good woman. However, I cannot understand this shortage. We have two children. Both are married and have good positions I was of the opinion that my wife gave them the money, but now I am sure that is not the case.

No Longer Affectionate.

"My wife was very affectionate until about two years ago. All at once she became cold, hard to please and with customers she is very indifferent and sometimes abusive. I talked about this to our family physician and he had a long talk with her. He stated that she probably needs a rest, so I suggested we turn the business over to our trusty employe who has been working for us for 15 years, a very capable man. The mere suggestion put just more fat on the already hot fire. I think I have done everything humanly possible to reason with her without result. Have you any suggestion?

"WORRIED."

"P S We have our own home (seven rooms). I employ a gardener and she has an old lady to cook and keep house clean. We have nice new car and she can use it any time I want to go out week-ends and enjoy a little bit with her, but she is brooding about something and will not tell me."

I am puzzled, Worried, and think guesswork in such a case is pretty dangerous business. Your physician did not tell you what your wife told him, I presume. The tendency to quarrel and scold may be nothing more than nerves. If she is worrying about something secretly, it would tend to make her nervous and "jumpy."

Have you thought that she might have some disease which she thinks may be fatal to her? It may be imaginary, but if she hasn't told your family physician, it may be distressing her just as much as if it was real. People who think they have cancer, for instance, are quite apt to worry about it in secret, when, if they would consult a doctor their fears would be allayed, or they could take treatments which would help.

If she feels she may need an operation she might put money away to meet the expense. Of course I know that would be unnecessary as you would take care of it, but in her worried state she may not see the matter in that light There is no use questioning her about it anyhow. Keep track of the shortage but say nothing When she objects to the modest amounts you keep for personal use, say nothing—just let her talk You certainly are entitled to them

Sometimes women in late middle life grow dissatisfied with their lives and think they are unhappy Very often a shock of some kind makes them realize how blessed they are More often they don't need a shock, health improves, life looks more rosy and they are all right again.

I would suggest continued patience on your part. Try gently to get her to take some outdoor recreation, driving in the country, walks if possible, and see if time and your love and trust in her won't bring her out of it Maybe the children could suggest something, as they are as interested in her welfare, almost as you are What did she say when you threatened to leave her?

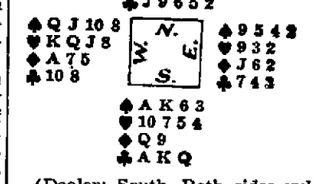
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PLACING THE HONORS

A DOUBLE or other strong action during the bidding can enable the declarer to place the high honors with one particular defender. In planning his play, it usually will pay to count the other defender for any low honors that may prove important, as few completely honorless hands are dealt.



(Dealer: South Both sides vulnerable)

South's original bid here was 1-Spade, which West doubled. North called 2-Diamonds, East passed, South went to 2-No Trumps, North 3-Clubs and South 3-No Trumps.

The heart K was led against this contract and the A in dummy won the trick Three rounds of clubs were now taken, and with the heart A gone from the dummy, South's problem was how to enter dummy to cash the set-up clubs.

Reading West for the diamond A, in view of his double, but being uncertain as to where the J might be, the declarer played the diamond Q, and when West failed to cover, went right up with the K. This play enabled him to make his contract.

West would not have gained anything by going in with the A, for in that event, he could have cashed only that trick and three hearts.

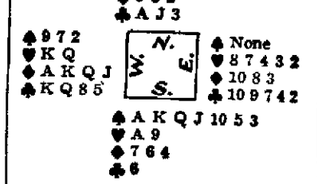
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. North. Both sides vulnerable)

After two passes, South bid 4-Spades. What should West do?

THEATER

Little Theater Road.

Michael Whalen, currently playing in "Walking Down Broadway" at the Ohio theater, entered films by the same way as many before him—through the Little Theaters of Southern California Whalen was playing in Eve Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory theater in New York City when he decided that he wanted to crash Hollywood. But instead of going to the casting bureau, he went to one of the Little Theaters and waited for the talent scout to find him. Now he is one of the busiest young actors in the film city. His current picture is a story woven around six beautiful chorus girls who sign an agreement one New Year's Eve to meet again in a year. Claire Trevor, Dixie Dunbar, Lynn Bari, Jayne Regan, Leah Ray and Phyllis Brooks are the girls.

Fighter Turns Actor.

Maxie Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight champion, would rather have been a baseball player than a fighter, so he became a movie player. Maxie, who isn't noted for his beauty, is in demand as a screen comedian, although he has a restaurant in Hollywood which takes a part of his time. The big "pug" is one of the fighters in "Mr. Moto's Gamble," now being shown at the Madison. Peter Lorre, who has distinguished himself in character roles, brings the famous Saturday Evening Post international detective, Mr. Moto, to the screen. This is his third picture in the Moto series and revolves around an arena murder committed before 20,000 unsuspecting fight fans.

Singing Star.

Jack Randall, singing Western star, introduces five new songs in his latest picture, "Where The West Begins," which the Majestic is showing today and tomorrow, among them "Born To The Range," "Down The Trail of Dreams," and "Sleep Little Cowboy." Randall is seen as the cowboy who plays Robin Hood to a stricken community in order to save it from a band of racketeers. The second film is lovely Madeleine Carroll in "I Was A Spy," an English made picture, which tells the pictured autobiography of a woman spy during the World war. Herbert Marshall plays opposite her as the English officer.

Western Thriller.

It's a stage coach robbery and murder on the range which cause the exciting complications in Bob Steele's new Western thriller, "Ridin' The Lone Trail," which opens today at the Ritz Bob takes the role of a sheriff who hires himself out as a cowboy on a ranch which he knows is a hot bed of intrigue, and to discover the identity of the "Masked Rider" Anna May Wong in "Daughter of Shanghai" is the second attraction for the two days She plays a Chinese girl who is determined to avenge her father's death at the hands of alien smugglers.

Cultivate Lovely Speech

By JULIET SHELBY

THE OTHER night this department had the honor of doing the town with a lot of distinguished visiting foreigners. We sat there grinning like the cat that ate the canary while they discoursed on the glories of American womanhood. According to them we of the Land of Liberty are the most beautiful, the best dressed and entirely the most delectable of our sex—until we open our mouths That fast one cut down on our smirking and burned us up. Especially so, because we've a horrid suspicion that they have got a little bit on their side.

So here's for sounding as good as we look! One of Hollywood's voice instructors says that a beautiful voice is a combination of tonal quality and clearness. This can be learned by practice, as many a movie star will acknowledge.

Apparently the trick to getting the right tone goes back to breathing properly. Breathe deeply and from the diaphragm, and breathe out more than in, when talking Remember to practice speaking against the frontal bones You will feel a vibration in the front of your oral cavity and in your cheeks and frontal sinuses.

After you have gotten your tone organized, the next thing to do is to go to town on learning to speak clearly. The telephone company has some simple exercises that they give the girls who are studying to be operators And they really will turn the trick.

Here is an exercise for the lips Extend them forward in open circular form, then let them relax and return to normal. Repeat several times Starting with lips closed, puff them apart with the breath, as for the sound of "p" in the word "part" and repeat this rapidly. Repeat, adding the various vowel sounds, in order, as "pah", "pay," etc. Again repeat, substituting the "b" sound as, "bah," etc

Tongue Exercise.

The tongue exercise is With mouth well open curve tip of tongue upward to touch gums just back of front teeth, and return to normal Repeat several times, gradually speeding up. Repeat, sounding "lah" each time tongue is lowered Again repeat, successively using the sounds "tah," "nah" and "dah"

The last is a jaw exercise: Drop the jaw, with muscles relaxed, far enough to permit inserting the thumb sidewise between the teeth Return to closed position, and repeat several times. Repeat, sounding the syllable "mah" each time the jaw is dropped Repeat, using the sounds "maw" and "moh." Avoid any forcing down or stiffening of the jaw. It should drop loosely.

Of course lovely speech can't be cultivated in a day, but it can be done, and it packs a world of appeal into each word Armed with a vibrant, alluring voice you've got the drop on the beautiful sirens who slink but squeak.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"It would better be," I said, smiling, when Mary said that "from now on, discretion would be her middle name."

"In fact," I went on, "suppose for the rest of our day and evening we act as if this man didn't exist. We'll note, of course, everything he does, but we won't make a single comment upon him until we're safely back in the hotel with the doors locked."

"That's the ticket," she agreed, "and I'm signing it. I move an amendment, too, that we don't let the—word of five letters beginning with 'I' bother us any more. We started out to have ourselves a time. Don't let this bird spoil it for us. What do you say?"

"I say 'yes'," I answered, trying to make my voice cheery, but feeling exactly the opposite emotion. I was resolved, however, that Mary should not recognize my dolor. But I succeeded so indifferently that when Mary announced it was time to think of dinner, she accompanied the remark with an emphatic, "and you certainly deserve a good feed. You've shown a lot of bravery under fire."

"What do you mean?" I countered, startled, but she only smiled at me

Madge Complimented.

"You know very well," she said, "only we resolved we wouldn't talk about it. You've been a brick to go through with this window shopping business when I know that you really didn't care a hoot in the hot place about it, and only toddled along to please me, same as you'd take a kid to the circus."

From somewhere I pumped up a quizzical smile.

"You know the old proverb. Dear, about it taking seven adults to escort one youngster to the circus. Really, I did enjoy the window shopping, even if you do insist upon my acting the role of a martyr over it."

"Martyr or no martyr, you're the world's best scout," she said. "That's my story, and I'm sticking to it. Now how about it? Are you game for a real French dinner at that ducky place over toward the East river?"

Agrees to Go.

I am exceedingly fond of French cooking, but I do not care for it so much in the summer. The dishes are far too heavy for hot weather consumption. But the day had been unusually cool, even for late summer, and I suddenly realized that I was hungry in spite of the fact that everywhere we had gone we had been conscious sooner or later of the presence of the man spying upon us. He had tried to conceal his presence, and was evidently banking upon his belief that we did not know of his existence.

"It's cool enough, Mary, for escargots and Coquille St. Jacques," I told her, smiling, for I know that her preference in French dishes coincides with my own.

"And crepes suzettes," she supplemented with an eager gamin grin "Come on! let's go!"

We took another taxi, and I know that Mary was estimating the detective's taxi bill with grim amusement. For we knew that he was following us, and were not surprised to see him enter the restaurant a few minutes behind us and take a table at the other end of the room. It was one unobtrusively located, which he, no doubt, hoped we would not notice from our booth—for Mary had insisted upon taking one of the semi-enclosed tables.

"It's so much more comfy this way," she said, "almost like a private dining room. See! We're at an angle here. We can't possibly see or be seen by the other 'boothers,' although we can hear—and be heard."

The last part of her sentence was forcibly brought home to us a few minutes later when we heard the noise of someone entering the angled booth next to ours and heard a woman's voice saying:

"You think you can get away with this, Dicky-bird, but I'm here to tell you that you can't."

It was the voice of the drunken woman who had called my husband at our hotel suite!

If you have left-over chicken, beef, or ham, chop, season well, spread on three-inch squares of pastry. Moisten with a little gravy or milk, roll up like a jelly roll, pressing the ends together tightly, bake in a quick oven and serve hot for luncheon.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 2.

A day of surprises and sudden undertakings is revealed by the planetary operations. There may be unexpected developments causing a change of residence, interests or an unforeseen journey. An element of secrecy or collusion seems at the bottom of this. It would be advisable to be influenced by elders, who have the best welfare at heart, but be wary as to deceit or treacheries from doubtful associates. Go slow on secret agreements.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for the advent of sudden and surprising developments in the affairs. These may call for unplanned change, travel, new interests and associations. Confer with elders when making decisions and be alert to schemes, pitfalls and secret agreements with others

A child born on this day may have a sound mind and good judgment but may be disposed to accomplish matters by easy methods, intrigue and secret understandings, rather than open standards of ethics.

Don't overlook the fact that your pea vines need something to climb on when they are small; If you have some good tall brush; cut off the tops and place them on the ground close to the rows. Medium tall peas can be supported by brush laid on the ground, but for the very tall varieties you will need to have the brush set in the earth.

Grape juice sauce blends well with baked, spiced or cottage puddings.
